BUDDIES HOMES FUND IS THROWN OPEN TO PRIVATE DONATIONS FOR MATERIAL

Pressure of Public Sentiment and Desire to Participate in Demonstration of Patriotism Becomes Irresistible

CHECKS MAY BE MAILED TO DELOS SMITH

Sales of Merchants Yielding Good Returns Which Will Go to Buy Material Needed for the Little Homes in La Crescenta

Pressure upon the Glendale Daily Press for permission to donate to the Five Buddies Building Fund, from among Glendale's leading men and women, leads today to the announcement that such donations may be made to Delos Smith, manager of the Brand Boulevard branch of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank.

It has been revealed that a number of people who had already bought all they actually wish at the stores of the merchants holding the sales wish to add to their contributions. They felt that they had not done enough. That the 5 per cent did not represent their sentiment.

In view of this attitude, the Glendale Daily Press welcomes such donations. Checks may be mailed to Mr. Smith.

The sales being held during the next two days should result in a representative amount, but the fact that the number of sales or the total amounts of individual sales must be increased greatly is apparent.

Many have visited the stores and withheld purchases for later consultation, with the result that the sales dates have passed at such stores and no credit can be given to the fund.

One of the biggest showings was reported yesterday by Grossman-Miller Furniture company at Brand and California. The firm was greatly gratified with the result. The percentage to the fund could not be stated.

A. Gelmor, tailor, 138 South Brand, reported good business but necessarily the contribution to the fund must be delayed until payment is made.

The Barlow notion store at 624½ East Broadway was well filled.

The sales for today and tomorrow will be:

The Welch Broadway Confectionery store, 604 East Broadway, where 2 per cent will go to the building fund of all candy sold today and tomorrow.

H. F. Brandenburg, watchmaker and jeweler, of 229 1-4 North Brand, will give 10 per cent of all business transacted today, Friday and Saturday.

The Anderson Dry Goods company, at 516 East Broadway, will give 5 per cent of all business on Friday. The sale is arranged for a big display which should bring goods sales, for the prices are scaled to the market.

TROPICO CHURCH CONCERT WILL MAKE RECORD

Radio Feature of Men's Club to Be Innovation

When the air opens tomorrow night all precedence will be broken in so far as the Tropico Presbyterian church and the Men's Club of that organization is concerned.

A radio concert will be the feature of the affair and Mayor Spencer Robinson, Glendale's singing mayor, will headline the bill, singing for the benefit of the club and its guests from the broadcasting station at the Kinema theatre in Los Angeles.

This radio concert was made possible by the Glendale Daily Press loaning its complete receiving set and magnavox together with the services of N. D. Garver, the radio editor of the Daily Press. The concert will start at 7:30 p. m.

Never before in the history of the Presbyterian church has a radio program been given within the confines of the church edifice. This will also be the first time that the Men's Club of the church has varied its program.

Mayor Robinson, of course, will be the headliner on the program. He has agreed to sing two songs at the broadcasting station tomorrow night. Several other musicians of note will be on the bill. Mayor Robinson announced this morning that his numbers will be "Highland Laddie," and "Annie Laurie."

During the intermissions on the program Mr. Garver will answer any questions that are asked from the audience. These intermissions are regulated by the government and last but three minutes, so it is imperative to have your questions ready to ask as soon as an intermission is announced.

The program to be given tomorrow night specially for the Tropico Presbyterian church is as follows:

Two songs by Mayor Spencer Robinson of Glendale: (a) "Highland Laddie," (b) "Annie Laurie."

Three original compositions, sung by Miss Dorothy D. Celunis.

Three songs my Thanton:

(a) Idyl of Love, waltz ballad; (b) Gondolier's Love Song, Venetian barcarolle; (c) Sweet Colleen, Irish ballad.

Miss Leta McLaren, accompanied on the piano by the author. Violin obligato played by Miss Ethel Cohen.

Accommodations will be provided for 200 people and it is expected that all seats will be filled when the concert starts at 7:30 as this concert will be open to the public. The invitation to the public to share in this concert is the first deviation from the regular program of the Men's Club of the church. In the past all programs and meetings have been for men only and no one except members of the club have been permitted to attend the meetings.

The program that is to start at 7:30 will be made up of selections broadcasted from the various stations in Southern California and is the regular program given every night. The main program of which Mayor Robinson will head the bill has been arranged specially for the Tropico Presbyterian church by the Kinema theatre and will start at 8 o'clock.

BANK EMBEZZLER PLEADS

UKIAH, Calif., May 4.—J. E. Weller, cashier of the First Bank of Savings of Fort Bragg, urged an early arraignment today, that he might plead guilty to charges of embezzling funds from the bank and its allied institutions, the First National bank of Fort Bragg.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair tonight and Friday. Cloudy or foggy in the morning.

C. OF C. SECRETARY SEASONABLY AWAY

Last Seen With a Fishing Rod, Eager Look and Friend Pipe

Hist! Sh-h-h! Another mystery. Where is the secretary of the chamber of commerce? Nobody knows, not even his assistant, E. F. Sanders. Last night Secretary James M. Rhoades made the announcement that he was not going to be at the office today, or tomorrow, and in fact, that he would not be there all week. He said that he was going on a vacation. He would not tell where he was going.

While the secretary would not tell where he would spend his vacation, it was noticed, and has been mentioned as a clue, that one of the principal items of luggage in his car when he left was a fishing pole. It would be a safe bet that this morning "Jim" could be located on the banks of one of the various trout streams in the county smoking his pipe, angling for the wary trout and "letting the rest of the world go by."

LIBRARY BOARD DISCUSSES PLANS

The chief matters discussed at the meeting of the library board were the interior improvements needed, painting the basement, the installing of a delivery desk in the juvenile room.

There was also tentative discussion of the growth of the library, the books on the shelves having been augmented by the addition of 1300 volumes in the past year. The constant additions mean more selving and the reduction of space which can be occupied by patrons who come to read.

The amount to be asked for in the city's annual budget was also considered. Increased patronage and increased books call for more library attendants and increase all along the line.

It's a Big Job to Attend to Our Own Affairs

It is really quite surprising to find how little time one has to pry into other people's affairs if one attends strictly to his own business as it should be, according to James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" this evening. He advises in his characteristic manner that it is well sometimes to get away from the neighbors' faults and modes of living just to devote a bit of needed attention to our own shortcomings.

Prospects for the agricultural outlook throughout the country are unusually bright. In the editorial columns is an interesting article on the conclusion to this effect, reached by Eugene Meyer, managing director of the war finance corporation. Besides this there is a keen editorial analyzing George Bernard Shaw's varying attitudes during his life-time.

Henry James this evening does not mince his words in commenting on the men who take advantage of spreading bolshevist propaganda, through the constitutional right of freedom of the press.

Dancing is the most primitive method of expressing joy and is not a sin when taken in the right light. The child who is full of life capers and prances about in his happiness. Thus speaking of dancing, Dr. Frank Crane proceeds to give some mighty good comparative arguments with its relation to religion. If you wish to complete a profitable hour, read the paragraphs by Della Stewart and John Pilgrim.

NATIONAL ASPECT OF REAL ESTATE IS DISCUSSED

Glendale Realty Board Is Host to Two Speakers

Members of the Glendale Realty Board met yesterday at luncheon and among other business voted to discontinue the practice of meeting twice each month at night for the transaction of business. Instead of the night meetings the realty board will meet every Wednesday at luncheon and transact all business. After the business session prominent speakers will address the members.

Henry B. Barbour of the Long Beach Realty Board and chairman of the membership committee of the California Real Estate association, talked on some of the big national questions of the day as they apply to the real estate men of the state. He told what stand the state association is taking on these various questions. He also told plans for the national convention of real estate men to be held in San Francisco in June, and of the second annual picnic of realtors to be held at Long Beach on May 20.

In passing, Mr. Barbour said that the word "realtor" has two meanings. The first definition of the word is "to construct." The second meaning of the word is "service." He said that a realtor is not only of service to his client, but is of service to the community.

The principal speaker was George H. Knox of the Knox Institute of Personal Efficiency. He talked on "Delusions." Mr. Knox said in opening that the realtors in a community are the centers of enterprise. He said that when a realtor sells a man a home he does more than just collect his commission—he helps to weave fibers of greater character into the children of the man buying the home.

Mr. Knox said that the world is full of delusions. The greatest delusion is that the average man in business thinks he is doing his best now and that he does not realize the latent power and ability of his brain. He said that the average man has the equivalent in brain power of a 1000 acre piece of fertile ground and that the average man has under cultivation a portion of this area equal to a small garden patch.

According to Mr. Knox, another popular delusion is: The average man thinks that he has succeeded when in reality he has not secured a good start. "There is no such thing as complete success," said Mr. Knox. He explained this by saying that as long as a man keeps his brain interested in the new things of the age and is mentally alert his success does not end, and as soon as this interest lags the man has reached maturity and, like a tree or flower when it reaches maturity, will die.

In closing, Mr. Knox said: "I want to leave this message for the young men of Glendale: There is no city ordinance against making good; neither is there a law against achievement."

FRANCE JOINS ANTI-WAR PACT

PARIS, May 4.—France today agreed to join Lloyd George's proposed Pan-European pact of non-aggression.

The cabinet met and decided to adhere to the proposed ten-year truce, with a single reservation that all France's rights under the Versailles treaty shall be respected.

Let Travellers Know This Is the Key City

By JOHN H. GERRIE
Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

WHY? Glendale is the KEY CITY to the vastest wealth development in the United States and scarcely anybody knows it. Every day in the year thousands of human beings ride through this key city and never know it. WHY?

Every day in the year hundreds ride through who never even heard of Glendale. WHY?

John H. Gerrie

WHY be the GATE CITY to the most talked- of and fastest growing section of the country and take no toll for it? WHY be guardian of the richest soil, oil and industrial district and not share in those riches? WHY command the most potential wealth in America and not even take credit for it?

These questions crowded fast upon one another's heels coming south on the "Lark" of the Southern Pacific system a few mornings ago. Seven crowded Pullman coaches carrying tourists, business men, investors and capitalists from all over the country rushed by Glendale as if it might have been nothing more than a water tank.

To a score of business men who filled the "club" car, Glendale meant nothing more than a water tank.

The writer, returning to Glendale from the north was carried through at a few minuets past nine in the morning but found it physically impossible to actually "arrive" in Glendale until nearly two hours later. Nobody else on the train was bound for Glendale and scarcely anybody else seemed to know there was any such city as Glendale.

In the club car where the men gathered to smoke and drink bottled water, the talk centered upon the marvelous resources, growth and prospects of Southern California and particularly of the Los Angeles district. The opinion was expressed, without calling forth any divergent view, that Los Angeles is on the way to be third American city, after New York and Chicago, and that Southern California eventually will be the most populous and richest district of its size on the continent.

Even a San Francisco export merchant in the car admitted that Los Angeles, through the development of its port of San Pedro, is likely to become the greatest industrial and shipping center on the Pacific. A manufacturer, also from San Francisco, in supporting this prediction, announced that he is about to transfer his business to the Los Angeles region because of more satisfactory labor and shipping conditions.

After almost every city in the Los Angeles district had been extolled, principally for the benefit of a prosperous looking man from New York who confessed this to be his first trip to California, the writer modestly inquired what those present thought of Glendale. The general look of vacancy that followed this question indicated that the club car assemblage THOUGHT NOTHING of Glendale, because they KNEW NOTHING of Glendale.

"Where is Glendale?" asked a business man from Portland.

"It's some place around Pasadena and a fast growing town," volunteered some one in the crowd.

"It's the key city to Southern California," the writer corrected, "and within a few minutes we will be travelling through it, before entering Los Angeles."

The "Lark" was then flying past Burbank, giving time for relation of a few facts as to size and growth before the almost empty industrial area of Glendale, along the San Fernando road, was reached.

"Why, I came through here ten or twleve times a year and never knew the name of the place or anything about it," said the man from Portland. Then he added: "Why don't they advertise these cities along the line of the railroad? A large sign at either entrance into the city limits giving name, population and a few salient facts would be of almost inestimable value to the city.

"If they had a big sign here worded like this: 'Glendale, Key City to Southern California, Watch Us Grow!' and then got the S. P. to stop all their passenger trains here, a lot of us would stop off occasionally to watch the city grow," was the comment of another passenger.

Other remarks along similar lines indicated clearly that passengers in railroad trains are interested in the development and growth of communities they see from the car windows but if such development and growth be not called to their attention one NAMELESS TOWN looks as good or as bad as another NAMELESS TOWN.

It would seem that Glendale as KEY CITY to Southern California is losing a lot of quodos, if not actual attraction of capital, by not letting the travelling public know she IS the KEY CITY. WHY?

LOS ANGELES FIRM MOVES NEARER GLENDALE

Pacific Sash & Door Co. Applies for C. of C. Membership

Another great industry is planning to move, if not into Glendale, as near to this city as possible. Assistant Secretary E. F. Sanders of the chamber of commerce yesterday received the application for membership in the local organization of the Pacific Sash & Door company, at present doing business at 3216 South Main street, Los Angeles.

With the application for membership by this firm comes the announcement that the company has just purchased 25 acres of land adjoining the yards of the Coast Lumber company on San Fernando road and will start building a manufacturing plant on the property at once.

The new tract purchased by the manufacturing company is not in Glendale but is just over the line and it is probable that the firm will do most of its banking and other business in Glendale.

ORGANIZATION OF MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM

N. P. Banks Post, G. A. R. Summons All Societies to Join

Patriotic, civic and fraternal societies of Glendale are called to meet with the N. P. Banks Post, G. A. R. for a unified Memorial Day program which will be a civic feature of the day.

The call was issued today by T. M. Bassett of the N. P. Banks post, and requested all organizations to send a representative to the Intermediate school on East Wilson avenue, at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, May 6. There the patriotic instructor of the G. A. R. will outline the plan for Memorial Day.

READING CIRCLE IS SURPRISED BY MRS. SHERLOCK

Presents Members With Angel Cake of Home Manufacture

The members of the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle who held their meeting in the library were given a delightful surprise by Mrs. L. J. Sherland of 318 Patterson street, who presented them with an angel food cake of her own manufacture. Each one received a generous piece of the cake and acting on the motion of Mrs. Brown a rising vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Sherland for her kindness.

Mrs. F. G. Hartman reviewed the article, "Why Children Lie," which appeared in a current magazine. In accordance with the request of N. P. Banks Post, G. A. R. a delegate from the Reading Circle was appointed to serve on the committee in charge of Memorial Day observance, the president naming Mrs. Eustace B. Moore.

Mrs. Moore told the Circle of the May Festival being staged by the Cerritos school and extended an invitation to everyone to come. This program, Mrs. Moore says, vies anything given by Pasadena, Hollywood or Los Angeles schools. No admission will be charged though booths for the sale of refreshments will be placed on the grounds and supper will be served in the school building.

Mrs. Pendleton, treasurer, announced 100 paid members. As the Circle year begins in April it is thought a membership of this size so early in the year is very encouraging and will make another successful year.

In the afternoon several chapters from the book, "Mother Love in Action" was read by Mrs. Moore. The review for next week will be given by Mrs. H. G. Henry.

SCOUT CHANDLER RALLIES BOARD

Calls for Reports on Stock Sales to Support Program

A jazzy summons to a report confernce of the executive board of the Verdugo Hills Boy Scout Council when team captains will announce the subscriptions they have secured for the support of the scout program, is being sent out by the president, Charles L. Chandler. The conference is to be held Monday evening, May 8, in the scout cabin of Troop No. 2, on the grounds of Mr. Chandler in Verdugo Woodlands. He says: "We are looking for 100 per cent report from our 'Knock-em-down-take-it-away' stock salesmen, and we'll have more money than we'll know what to do with, but when it comes to getting the dough $$$$ Captain Watson and Purser Eastman are two hard boys to beat. Seriously, we need you at this meeting. Scoutfully yours, Charles L. Chandler."

DISSENTION IN CHINESE ARMIES

SHANGHAI, May 4.—Dissension in the ranks of Sun Yat Sen's Canton forces and the refusal of a mutinous commander to lead an expedition from the city, today was believed to forecast defeat for Chang Tso Lin in the civil war raging around Peking.

Sun Yat Sen had ordered an expedition to march north against Wu Pei Fu, but General Cheung Chiung Ming refused to harrass the central commander. He declared Wu to be a patriot, fighting the battle of China against Japanese domination.

Robbed of Sun Yat Sen's assistance, Chang Tso Lin's speedy defeat is predicted here.

H. C. L. IS ILL OF LOW PRESSURE

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Cost of living in the United States dropped 4.2 per cent during the first three months of this year, the department of labor estimated today.

The decrease since the peak of post war high levels reached in June, 1920, is 22.9 per cent, the department said.

UNMIXED NATURAL GAS ORDERED TO GLENDALE BY RAILROAD COMMISSION

Higher Rate But More Heat Per Volume Will Afford Better Fuel for Service Throughout This District Under Ruling Handed Down by Arbiters

EIGHTY-FIVE CENTS PER 1,000 HEAT UNITS

Present Rate of 78 Cents for Mixture Which Contains Only 750 Per Cent, So New Vapor Will Lower Cost of Additional Supply by Seven Cents

Natural gas will come to Glendale July 1, as unmixed fuel.

Beginning July 1, the users of gas in Glendale will be afforded a reduction in the price of that fuel, judged from the heat unit basis, as a result of a decision handed down yesterday by the railroad commission of California. At the present time Glendale is paying 78 cents for mixed gas containing 750 heat units, while the new rate will be 85 cents for 1000 heat units, which means an additional 250 heat units for seven cents. While there will be the seven-cent increase in the rate charged, it is pointed out in the decision that the natural gas is capable of more economical use.

On account of the withdrawal of large quantities of natural gas used heretofore in boosting mixed gas in southern and western Los Angeles, it is possible to assign 830,000 more cubic feet daily to Glendale and still increase the amount of natural gas for Los Angeles. It is stated that the change in the service for Glendale is made to avoid the necessity of erecting a new holder which would cost about $200,000, or a new transmission line, which, if extended, would result in a higher cost for gas in Glendale.

In the decision handed down by the railroad commission yesterday, gas companies that are serving Los Angeles and vicinity are ordered to make an expenditure of $9,529,000. The greatest expenditure, according to the decision, must be made by the Los Angeles Gas and Electric company, this to aggregate $8,000,000. Yesterday's decision came as a result of the commission's own motion to investigate the reasonableness and adequacy of the service of the companies after the experiences of last winter, which was heard here by President Brundige and Commissioner E. H. Benedict. The investigation was conducted by Harry L. Masson, gas supervisor for the district of the Los Angeles office of the commission.

According to the decision the Los Angeles Gas and Electric company and the Southern California Gas company, which serves the Glendale district, are required to submit plans for the installation of better equipment for determining heat value of the gas sold domestic consumers prior to July 1. From November 1 to March 31 the Los Angeles Gas and Electric company is required to operate twenty pressure gauges and to take off 100 or more charts per week at consumers' meters. During the same period the Southern California Gas company is required to take at least 25 charts a week for the same purpose.

The improvement ordered will increase by 35,000 feet of artificial gas the daily quantity of gas available for distribution and provide against fluctuations of pressure during the periods of greater use. It is believed that the general plan of improvements ordered by the commission, although not capable of accomplishment before next winter, will do much toward stabilizing gas service and pressure in Los Angeles and vicinity and will decrease if not eliminate the cold weather complaints.

The decrease in the actual cost of gas per 1000 heat units will be very favorably received by the people of Glendale, who realize it is not the quantity of gas that passes through the meter but the actual heating power of the gas used that counts. It is not often that the railroad commission hands down a decision favorable to the people, but when it does the "common folks" are more than willing to give it full credit.

SHRINE CLUB HAS BUSINESS MEET

The Glendale Shrine club met last night in a purely business meeting. No entertainment was arranged as the business program was one of the largest that has come before the local organization since it was formed.

The main item of discussion was plans for the entertainment of visiting nobles and their families in June. It is estimated that about 10,000 Shriners will pass through Los Angeles en rote to the convention in San Francisco. Most of these visitors will no doubt visit Glendale and the Shrine club has many plans for their entertainment. It was the perfection of these plans that occupied the time of the nobles at their meeting last night.

CERRITOS QUEEN OF MAY NAMES COURT

Yearly School Festival of Tropico to Take Out Door Stage

The May festival which is to provide such a joyfest at Cerritos avenue chool Friday afternoon, and incidentally, produce money for school needs, will, of course center, as in the past, around the Queen of the May, Mary Jane La Point and her court—Julia Steelman, maid of honor; Margery Gilhuly, Eleanor Carpenter, Thelma Rucker, Florence McCoubrey, Margery Priaulx, Edna Strong, Gwendolen Merrill and Helen Danforth.

Besides these maids, kindergarten kiddies are to attend the queen, in the persons of Peter Bancroft, who will be crown bearer; Jack Cleeland and Charles Chapman, who will be train bearers; and the following pages: William Kayser, Bobbies Johannes, Claire Hedges, Iril Heald, Peter Van Etten, Willard Markham, Gordon Heald.

Flower girls, who will strew blossoms in the path of the queen, are Romanda Kennedy, Pattie Darling, Leila Jackson, Barbara Forsythe, Alice May Bacon, Billie Cummings, Ruth Wray, Virginia Luthell, Marjorie Biggs, Norma Henderson and Mildred Todd.

The program is to start on the school grounds at 1:30 p. m. To heighten anticipation a few numbers will be given by way of preparation before the pretty queen's procession appears. The Intermediate orchestra under the direction of Miss Brennaman will play and then a spring pageant under the direction of Miss Helen Hitchcock will be given by pupils of the fourth grade. Geraldine Mangham will represent Spring, and other children will personate March Winds and other harbingers of spring. The parrot, the cat, the bunnie, the frog, will have a place in this number, and little Julie Blake of Los Angeles will conclude the pageant with the "Teddy Bear Frolic."

There will be another selection by the orchestra and then the gardeners will appear from the second grade, "The Sunbonnet Babies" and "The Overall Boys."

More music will be dispensed by the orchestra, and this time it will be a royal march which will herald

The Barton Bedtime Stories

TAD IS CAUGHT IN A YARN

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Yes, Tad Coon completely forgot that he was caught. He sat up on the driver's seat of the broken airplane in Tommy Peele's Broad Field with his tail as big as a watermelon and his whiskers on end. And he was so pleased at the excitement he was causing that he didn't care how long it was before Tommy came to help him get out again. For Bobby Robin had bolted off to Dr. Muskrat's Pond, shrieking, "Tad, Tad! The Headless Hunter's got him!" And of course all the woodsfolk came to see. And the blackbirds and meadowlarks and killdeers and sparrows and the other robins swooped back and forth overhead asking questions.

Tad drew his chin in against his chest and looked very grand—but very, very severe. "You can look all you please," said he. "I won't let the creature hurt you. But you mustn't touch it—not even with the tippest-end of a wing. 'Cause my man told me to take care of it for him."

"But what is it? What is it?" they wanted to know.

Now that's what Tad was still wondering. But he wouldn't let on. Not he! "I can't tell you," he answered. "My man wants to keep it a secret. Of course he can't help your looking. But if you don't know what it's really called you can't tell any one about it, can you? Eh? Besides, it's name is as queer as its looks; you couldn't even say it. I'll tell you just this—it isn't a Hunter at all. That's just foolish talk. (As if he hadn't done his share of talking!) It's a whole lot worse!"

"Worse?" they squawked. "It can't be. Then what are you doing in it?" And they were more curious than ever.

"Oh, I'm all right." Tad tried to look very knowing. "My man showed me how to handle it. 'Tad,' says he, 'seeing you're the smartest of——.'" But he didn't go on with his yarn-spinning. For down the lane came the man himself, and a stranger with him. Poor Tad! Now they'd catch him. Where, oh, where was Tommy Peele?

He flopped down off the seat and squeezed up small in the bottom of the machine. The men came up; he could hear them talking. Then one looked in. "Hello," he remarked, "you've left your coat—no! By Jove, if it isn't a real, live coon!"

And He Took Hold of Tad

"So it is. I guess it's the very one I told you was so tame. Here, Goggles, (that's what the aviator called Tad, on account of his black mask, you know) I'm going to need that space to work in." And he took hold of Tad. Tad was scared enough to bite. But he'd been bragging about what friends they were. And all the birds were looking. So he gritted his teeth and let himself be tossed safely out onto the ground.

NEXT STORY—TAD IS TRAPPED BY HIS BOASTING .

SOFT DRINKS ARE URGED BY MEDICAL AUTHORITIES

Within the past few years, bottled soft drinks have become one of the leading and wholesome foods of America, according to Dr. Lewis B. Allyn, director of the Westfield Laboratories, Westfield, Mass. Dr. Allyn, who is one of the leading food chemists of the United States, speaking before a Boston audience, asserted that bottled soft beverages, through their nutritive value and sanitation, have ceased to be only thirst quenchers and have come to be recognized as a healthful food product. His statement has been received by the Henry-Brown company, Glendale makers of Sierra Ginger Ale and Fru-Ber-Ree.

"An 8-ounce bottle of soft drink carries about 87 calories of heat or energy forming material," Dr. Allyn stated. "Eighty-seven calories is equal to the average amount of heat or energy building units contained in the average portion of sliced bananas. Eighty-seven calories is no small amount and there are plenty of foods in every-day use which are recognized as healthful and substantial that do not have the food value of a bottle of carbonated beverage.

"For example, flounders and several other varieties of fish, shell clams, lobsters, oysters, asparagus, string beans and various other green vegetables, sauer kraut, tomatoes, beef soup, chicken broth and so on indefinitely. And yet, how few people realize that a pound of bottled beverage has as much food value as a pound of these recognized foods.

"Soft drinks have other uses. They carry no inconsiderable amount of organic or fruit acids, which are utilized by the body in maintaining what is known as the acid-alkali balance. Those drinks perform an important function as flavor through its condimental effects act as a gentle appetizer."

Think to Do

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Again and again we nowadays hear it said of some young man who is not making any real headway in business life:

"The trouble is that he lacks 'pep.' He is short in forcefulness, in energy. He does not seem to be more than half alive."

And not infrequently it is added, by way of an offhand diagnosis:

"But probably he cannot help it. The chances are he was born that way, or has acquired some physical weakness which has slowed him down."

The chances, as a matter of fact, are nothing of the sort.

Many young men, it is true, are to some extent constitutionally inert, or have been de-energized by some bodily affliction for which they are not responsible. But many more are victims of bad personal habits. And in especial their energy deficiency is a product of being content to drift through life without really thinking, without using their minds.

Ask any psychologist of your acquaintance and he will tell you that thought is dynamogenic. Pressed to explain just what this means, he may say, in effect:

"It is a psycho-physical law that all ideas tend to find expression in some appropriate action. This means that they stimulate the person to whom they occur to behave in a specific way.

"And the stimulus increases in proportion to the extent to which ideas associated with one another are dwelt upon and turned over in the mind. For the associated ideas, being successively entertained, have a cumulative effect in urging to action and in facilitating action."

Hence, to think energetically about anything—about one's work, for example—helps one to act energetically in respect to the thing or things thought about. And when there is little thinking—when the dynamogenic impulse of ideas is lacking—energetic doing will likewise tend to be absent.

Still worse, any prolonged failure really to think must of necessity establish what medical men call "a vicious circle."

That is, because there habitually is little thinking, there gradually develops a bodily habit of inertness, reacting on all the internal processes. The circulation slows, a general asthenia, or weakness, of the nervous system eventuates. This in its turn makes it more difficult for the individual to think energetically as well as to act energetically.

Physical remedies may then be called for—tonics, exercise, and so forth. Nevertheless, the initial trouble being psychic, the physical remedies must be accompanied by mental training if they are to produce lastingly good results in the way of securing the desired "pep."

And mental training will itself often suffice to do this. Get a young man's attention so directed to something that he will become interested enough in it to think hard about it, and it may not be long before he is acing with regard to it as energetically as could be desired.

Think to do. That, in truth, is a maxim of great practical importance, of such importance that none of us should let it slip from his or her mind.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES

"Can anyone tell me what snow is?" asked the teacher.

"Yes'm; it's dried rain," answered the small boy at the foot of the class.

Hazel (during a temporary lull in the conversation)—I say, ma, isn't it a pity that you haven't got the toothache instead of poor Aunt Jane?

Ma—Gracious me! Why, dear?

Hazel—Why, 'cos you can take yours out and aunty can't.

NOTICE OF STREET WORK

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE ON THE 27TH DAY OF APRIL, 1922, DID, AT ITS MEETING ON SAID DAY, ADOPT A RESOLUTION OF INTENTION, NUMBER 1480, DECLARING AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. That the public interest and convenience require and it is the intention of the Council of the City of Glendale to order the following work and improvement to be done, to-wit:

First: That a cement sidewalk of the width of five (5) feet be constructed along the southeasterly line of Western Avenue from the northeasterly curb line of Fourth Street to the southwesterly curb line of Glenwood Road, except where sidewalk is already constructed to the official line and grade. Said work to be done in accordance with Plan No. 511, Profile No. 765-A, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and designated as Specifications No. 31.

SECTION 2. That pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of the State of California approved February 27, 1893, and the Acts amendatory thereto, Serial bonds bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum shall be issued to represent assessments of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars or over for the costs of said work or improvement; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending nine (9) years from and after the second day of January next succeeding the date of said bonds, and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable by coupon on the second day of January every year after their date until the whole is paid; and the interest shall be payable semi-annually by coupon on the second days of January and July, respectively, of each year at the rate of 7 per cent per annum on all sums unpaid, until the whole of said principal and interest is paid.

SECTION 3. The City Engineer is directed to make a diagram of the property affected or benefitted by the proposed work or improvement as described herein, and to be assessed to pay the cost and expenses thereof. Such diagram shall show each separate lot, piece or parcel of land, the area in square feet in each of said lots, pieces or parcels of land, and the relative location of the same to the work proposed to be done, all within the limits of the assessment district.

SECTION 4. All Maps, Cross-sections, Plans and Profiles referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Engineer of said City. All Specifications referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Clerk of said City. Said Maps, Plans, Cross-sections, Profiles and Specifications are hereby referred to for a more particular description of said work and made a part hereof.

The district to be assessed to pay the costs and expenses of said work and improvement is described in Resolution of Intention No. 1480, to which said Resolution of Intention reference is hereby made for further particulars of said work.

C. D. HILL,
Street Superintendent of the City of Glendale.

MILITIAMEN WIN A. A. U. MEDAL

Reward for Overwhelming Victory in Fullerton Team Contest

After an overwhelming victory last night over the team from Fullerton Junior college, played in the gymnasium of the Glendale high school, the members of the national guard basketball team of Glendale were awarded bronze medals by officials of the A. A. U. as recognition for winning third place in the league, which closed its season last night.

The Fullerton and guard teams, were tied for third place, the tie being played off last night, ending with a score of 23 to 11 in favor of the guardsmen. This game ended a season of brilliant basketball play for the guard team.

Before the A. A. U. season opened the national guard team played the majority of the amateur teams in Los Angeles and the county. In practically all of the games the Glendale team, which is made up of members of company M, 160th infantry, C. N. G., came home with the long end of the score. Early in the season the Glendale team won the regimental championship by defeating the (at that time) undefeated team of company C.

At the beginning of the league season the Glendale team lost several men due to removal and transfer to other companies, and it looked for a time as though it would be a hard season for the Glendalians. New men were found to fill the vacancies, however, and after a few games, had become a part of the athletic machine that has worked to perfection during the season.

Plans are now being made to organize a baseball team in the two guard companies stationed in Glendale. The team will compete for the regimental championship at the annual encampment and maneuvers of the national guards at Monterey this summer.

The members of the guard basketball team are "Wad" McIver, H. Doll, "Bill" Girts, Wilbur Johns and "Brick" Wilde.

In time of peace it takes little to start a quarrel.

CRIME MAY BE AVERTED SAYS EXPERT

Ernest B. Hoag of L. A. to Instruct in Summer University

"How Not to Make a Burglar," is a subject which may momentarily arrest the attention of a public which has almost ceased to marvel at the ease and efficiency with which youths of 18 commit murder, larceny and mayhem.

The Southern Branch Summer Session of the State University presents a course of lectures by Dr. Ernest Hoag upon the subject of juvenile delinquency and mental hygiene, treating exhaustively the problem of misconduct in children in all its phases.

Dr. Hoag, who is nationally known as an authority on criminology, and has had wide experience as special investigator in various governmental positions, asserts that even playful youths may be educated in the use of gentler toys than revolvers and black jacks, if taken in time.

Those who take the course will be aided in arriving at their own conclusions by a first-hand study of cases in the Los Angeles court, the Detention Home, the Whittier Industrial school, and other institutions.

Bulletins available, 831 Pacific Finance Building, (Pico 3621).

LITTLE LOST DOG FINDS HIS OWNER

Mrs. Madison Advertises in Glendale Daily Press and Gets Results

The little trick dog that so sturdily found a home at the Cunningham residence on Ivy street, sat up and thanked the Glendale Daily Press last night, for its account, which brought his mistress, Mrs. Madison, newly come to Glendale, to the Cunningham home post-haste.

"Whiskers!" she called.

And the little wiry haired fox terrier bounded to her wagging himself all over.

"He has lived in Glendale 12 years," she explained, and then a year in Burbank. We just came back to Glendale and he disappeared the first thing. He must just have lost his number. I haven't slept a wink since he went away. I advertised but got no answer. Today I put an advertisement in the Daily Press for the first time."

So the little dog went home to the old black cat in the Madison home, 361 West Harvard, the cat that he loves so well.

Son of Ex-Emperor Is Named Austrian King

Crown Prince Otto, son of the late ex-Emperor Charles of Austria, has been named "king" of that country by the Legitimist Party, declare reports from Vienna. Prince Otto is ten years old. He is at Maderia, where his exiled father died. The naming of Otto as king is not taken seriously, inasmuch as the royal fomily was dethroned during the war. But the child is said to have royal rights in Hungary and Prince Otto may yet become involved in Europe's politics.

W. Claire Anspagh Enters Attorney's Office in Glendale

Coming to Glendale from Riverside a week ago, seeing the possibilities of the town and forming business connections and deciding to make his home here is the record of W. Claire Anspagh, an attorney, formerly of Riverside but from now on of Glendale. Mr. Anspagh is associated with James McBryde, Glendale attorney, and commander of the Glendale post No. 127, American Legion.

Mr. Anspagh is also an ex-service man, having served with the military intelligence department at the Newport News, Va., port of embarkation during the World War. He is a member of the Riverside post of the American Legion but will transfer his membership to the Glendale post at once.

Mr. Anspagh graduated from Stanford university in 1917. On graduation he entered the service and was discharged at the end of the war. He then entered the Harvard law school and was graduated from that institution last June.

Mr. McBryde, who is well known in law circles throughout the southern part of the state, says that he feels fortunate in securing Mr. Anspagh as an associate, as his practice has grown to such an extent that he cannot handle it alone.

BEVERIDGE BOOMED FOR PRESIDENT

INDIANAPOLIS, May 4.—"Veveridge for president in 1924" was the battle cry of the Hoosier Bull Moose today, flush from victory of their leader over Senator Harry S. New.

Albert J. Beveridge's defeat of the close friend and supporter of President Harding for the republican nomination for United States senator was the most astounding upset in Indiana's political history. A realignment of political forces in the state is sure to follow.

Messages of congratulations received by Beveridge from former Bull Moose leaders convinced his close followers that if he is successful in defeating Samuel Ralston, democrat, at the November election, his candidacy for president would receive widespread support from progressives of both parties.

MRS. PILKINGTON DIES AT HER HOME

Funeral Services to Be Held in Los Angeles

Mrs. Augusta L. Pilkington died last night at her home, 214 East Broadway. She had been a member of the First Methodist church in this city for several years and had quite a circle of acquaintances in that church.

The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Boyle Heights Methodist church in Los Angeles at the special request of Mrs. Pilkington, that having been the church home for many years of deceased and of her husband, who died several years ago. Dr. C. M. Crist of this city, who became acquainted with the Pilkingtons thirty years ago, will have charge and will be assisted by Rev. A. Ray Moore, D. D., pastor of the church, and Rev. Alfred Inwood of Long Beach.

Truths in Epigram

While we read history we make history. — Curtis (1824-1892).

Immortality alone could teach this moral how to die.—Craik (1826-1907).

We have unmistakable proof that throughout all past time, there has been a ceaseless devouring of the weak by the strong.—Spencer (1829-1903).

SHAW BREAKS OUT ANEW

George Bernard Shaw may be considered unique. Perhaps there is no keener intellect now appealing to the public. The real depth of the man is not shown in the work he has been doing of late. Some of his errors of statement are so gross that the reader knows they are not sincere. Shaw delights in giving a shock. He glories in assault upon any phase of civilization. He has the instincts of the traitor, for he seems incapable of being true to any cause. An Irishman, nurtured and made rich in an English environment, and winning plaudits and money from America, he buffets alike Ireland, England and America. All fall short of the impossible standards he has set for them. The standards in question would not be admirable even if they were possible.

One trouble with Shaw is his vast confidence in his own judgment, which is likely to be bad. He has written good plays, but he does not belong on the plane with Shakespeare, as he thinks he does. In his younger days, before his head had been turned, he was distinguished as a critic of the drama. In this field he did his best work. In latter days his verdict could not be accepted, for prejudice has conquered in the period that should have felt the influence of mellowing years.

"Imprisonment as it now exists is worse than the offense of its victims," Shaw has written recently. His argument in behalf of this singular statement fails utterly, as it must, the premise being an absurdity. There are prison abuses doubtless, although those he pictures are far worse than any existing in the United States. His intimation that to be deprived of liberty is not a pleasurable experience nobody will have inclination to deny. Infliction of the experience is necessary, however, for the protection of society. In shutting a robber from the privilege of robbing, society merely acts in self defense. It may cure the robber and it may not, but for the nonce it is safe from him. That society as a whole lacks perfection will be admitted, too. In some way not clearly defined, it may be responsible for the existance of the robber. Its concrete problem lies in the fact that the robber does exist.

Shaw then proceeds to demolish, unwittingly, what he conceived to be his own argument. He says that home is a prison, the school a prison, the office a prison. Everybody, then, save the absolute loafer is in prison, and such sympathy as Shaw has excited on behalf of the robber for being locked up, sort a' oozes away.

Perhaps the fact that a woman of his acquaintance, and whom he had admired with manifest ardor, is now engaged in publishing his letters, written for her eye alone, tends to irritate Shaw. Nobody could blame him for this, if he feels a natural spite, however, he should take it out on the female rather than on the public.

THE LECTURER'S ART

John Cowper Powys has been lecturing again to the people of this benighted neck of the woods. It is getting to be an habitual kindness on his part, and is appreciated by admiring audiences. The art of lecturing lies largely in the ability to hold the ear attentive. Instruction may be imparted, or a sense of mental confusion. In either case the hearers go their ways, a little more content if they have heard something they do not understand. This leaves them the comfort of thinking they have been in contact with profundity.

A recent Powys lecture, judged by certain excerpts, seems to have been on the subject of art. To lecture on art means the mastery not only of the art of putting something across, but of various activities appealing much to the sense of beauty, by seeming to exalt the beautiful. Mr. Powys is quoted (among many other quotations) as follows:

"Silly discussions of the moment like 'Shall we let flappers read Theodore Dreiser?' or 'Is the soul immortal?' have nothing to do with art."

It would be interesting to know who ever said these things had anything to do with art. He might have added that the slaughter of swine in the abattoir was not an artistic process.

Ruskin, a critic utterly repudiated by the modern and fleeting schools of new art, said: "He is the greatest artist who has embodied in the sum of his works the greatest number of the greatest ideas."

But while these queer aggregations of protest and non-achievement have repudiated Ruskin, the intelligence of this century, as will the intelligence of centuries to come, holds his opinion to be precious.

Coming back to the question projected for illustrative purposes by Powys, why flappers, or any other set of human beings in a bright and busy world should read Dreiser, never has been explained. He becomes interesting only at points where hte common judgment would deem him improper, and the points are connected by unprofitable stretches.

Under the name of art are grouped now hideous paintings and sculptures that insult the name and the observer. They do not constitute art, but artfice. They suggest nothing but a series of drunken dreams. Similarly, it is a bad custom to scoff at poets, and to set up in their places men and women who are not poets. Certain writers have gone to the length of considering Ezra Pound a poet.

It is possible that some lecturers have an ill defined notion, as they talk of art, what art really is. But it is possible also that editors are incited by the same theme, to do as badly or worse.

TURKESTAN AND RUSSIA

A treaty has been arranged between Turkestan and Russia. This is a way of saying that the bolshevists have made the form of agreement and shoved it down the throat of Turkestan at the point of bayonets. Small sympathy will be wasted on the victims of this imposition. The Turkestan party to the treaty is the revolutionary faction led by Enver Pasha, who escaped being hanged long ago only because the processes of justice are halting and imperfect.

By this treaty Turkestan is made the subject of Russia. It is accorded empty recognition as a soviet republic. As a matter of fact, it has none of the perogatives of a government. It may not make a treaty unless with Russian sanction. It is forbidden to dispose of its surplus products to any country but Russia. Its army instructors must be Russian.

Selling goods to Russia, a country without money or credit, would not be likely to excite much ardor on the part of producers. Being infested by an army directed by Russia would not be likely to permit the "republic" even a taste of liberty. Turkestan has the comfort of knowing that the signing of a treaty with bolshevism does not set up any moral obligation. Soviets boast of their bad faith, making a virtue of it. They keep a promise only while to do so in an advantage to themselves. Hence they are without power to make a promise that the other signatory to a treaty is bound to respect. The future of Turkestan is not settled by these meaningless papers.

THE OUTLOOK BRIGHTENING

This country's agricultural outlook is said to be of unusual promise. Such is the conclusion of Eugene Meyer, managing director of the war finance corporation, reached after extended examination. He found while on a trip through the farm and stock raising area, that the old feeling of depression had gone, in others is passing. Everywhere he encountered hope and confidence.

Despite a brief reign of pessimism, and popular indulgence in despair, there never has been any reason why the outlook for the United States should have been regarded as other than roseate. For the richest country in the world, producing only to a small part of its canacity; where capital is abundant, skilled and unskilled labor available, to have plunged into depression would have been suicidal. It would have left the world to conclude that it had everything but intelligence, and, lacking intelligence, had failed to make use of its assets.

The dependence of each nation upon other nations is admitted. This does not mean that because one people somewhere has been stripped of its substance, a greater people at a distance, never so stripped, must fall with the first into physical desolation and mental coma. The rich people still has itself to care for, and out of its abundance, and its energy, may be able to lift its fallen neighbor. If, under providence, the continent of Europe were to vanish, the western hemisphere would be capable of sustaining itself.

Markets have suffered disarrangement owing to war. Conditions have been marred by the activities of the profiteer. Nevertheless there is money, industry, productivity, a constant demand. Prosperity as it appears anew need not be regarded with surprise. It is as natural as the coming of the dawn.

DANCING AND RELIGION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The dance, even as the theater, was originally a ceremony of religion.

Dr. William Guthrie, a clergyman of New York, introduced a dance into one of his religious services. The press account states:

DR. FRANK CRANE

"The sanctuary was hidden by a thick curtain and after a hymn the Virgin girls danced in the chancel in the glow of blue spotlights operated from the balcony which played upon them as they moved. All the while the dimly lighted church was fragrant with incense which burned on either side of the altar.

"Dr. Guthrie explained afterward that he believes beauty 'may teach the pathway to God,' declaring, 'If we cannot make the dance the pathway to heaven it will be the pathway to hell.'

"At the end of the performance in the church, the sanctuary was unveiled and the service proceeded as usual."

Stripped of its traditional and theological connotations, dancing is simply the most primitive method of expressing joy.

Unfortunately many are entirely incapable to do this sort of stripping, for their conviction is nothing without its creed clothings, and their feeling is nothing without its symbol. For such, religion must always consist of a creed, an organization or a custom, or all three.

But for those who are able to think without fearing any traps for truth there is comfort in the thought that no universal instinct is unclean, except in its abuse.

Life is the thing. And life manifests itself in certain ways, old as the human race.

Life, conscious life, consists in thought and feeling. And these manifest themselves by signs.

The first signs are gestures; subsequently come words. The oldest of all expressions of thought and feeling is the gesture. People talk in sign language before they use articulate speech.

As the oldest expression of grief consists in tears and cries, so the oldest expression of joy consists in dancing.

The child is always dancing. He capers about simply because he is full of life.

The most natural method for any one to use in expressing joy, when, for instance, he hears a piece of rare good news, is to jump around, prance with his feet and wave his hands.

And religion, no matter what it is, ought to be joy. It ought to be the strongest form of joy of which the human being is capable. That being the case, the expression of religious emotion by the dance is strictly logical.

The best way to counteract that sort of dancing which is evil would be to encourage that sort of dancing which is good.

Some day or other the teachers and preachers of the world will learn the folly of saying Don't and address themselves to the more necessary if more arduous task of telling people what to do.

IN THE LISTENING POST

Once in a while it is well to sit down to a little inquisitorial process.

Inquisition has a disagreeable sound.

From the fact that it recalls an Institution.

Where men were tortured and racked and broken.

* * *

It was sought to make them conform to an established form of belief.

To torture them into acquiescence.

One of the struggles between freedom of thought and establishment of creed.

And with all the racks and wheels and gouges and hot irons freedom of thought finally won.

Because it was right and just.

* * *

And Right and Justice win always in the end.

Whatever we may think or believe.

However dark the cloud.

Great as may be the discouragement.

Right and Justice always win.

Otherwise the human race would not survive.

* * *

But a litle individual inquisition is not a bad thing.

Rather wholesome.

Because we can ease up a little when the pain becomes too great.

* * *

And the individual inquisitorial process is a good thing because it takes our minds off the neighbors.

And directs it at ourselves.

We learn not to worry so much about saving the souls of other people.

We are more concerned as to whether our own souls are saved or not.

* * *

A great many people who are seeking to redeem their neighbors from everlasting torture by a disagreeable busybodyish interference, are far from redemption themselves.

So it is well sometimes to get away from the neighbors' faults.

The neighbors' boys and girls.

The neighbors' business.

And devote a little needed attention to our own.

* * *

It is not so much how my neighbor is living.

Or how I may think he is living.

But how am I living?

It is not how square is my neighbor.

It is how square am I?

It is not whether my neighbor has the weeds out of his yard and garden.

It is have I the weeds out of my yard and garden?

* * *

Let us sit down once in a while and take account of ourselves.

With plain questions.

Are we clean?

Are we doing our work cheerfully?

Are we playing the game fairly?

* * *

Have we gotten the beams out of our eyes?

Are we giving sixteen ounces to the pound?

A day's work for a day's pay?

Have we cleansed our spirits of hate and envy and bitterness?

Do we love our neighbors enough not to want to send them to Hell because they do not agree with us?

* * *

It will be illuminating to discover how an inquisition helps.

And how little time we will have to devote to the minding of the business of our neighbors when we have our own business attended to well and as it should be.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Gloaming—Robert Adger Bowen (1868——)

Skies to the West are stained with madder;
Amber light on the rare blue hills;
The sough of the pines is growing sadder;
From the meadow-lands sounds the whippoorwills,
Air is sweet with the breath of clover;
Dusk is on, and the day is over.

Skies to the East are streaked with golden;
Tremulous light on the darkening pond;
Glow-worms pale, to the dark beholden;
Twitterings hush in the hedges beyond.
Air is sweet with the breath of clover;
Silver the hills where the moon climbs over.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

Just what is the "beauty contest?" For advertisement—pure and simple. It certainly is not wholesome, even for the winners. The possessors of charming faces are usually very well aware of the fact, and sufficiently self-conscious without having the fact bruited abroad. And notoriety is never fame, though the two are often confused with each other.

Any contest based upon the principle of immodesty in action isn't exactly commendable. Ordinarily the entrants to contests requiring votes of the public to decide them have to work for their own success. To go about begging one's friends and mere acquaintances for votes, coaxing others to work for the same, puts a young person—or any person—in a position not exactly desirable to the refined taste. It's a mistake to appeal to one's vanity for selfish ends. Especially is it a mistake to so appeal to the immature.

Of course such contests are not supposed to be taken seriously, but more in the spirit of a joke. But the fact remains that they are taken very seriously by not only the contestants but their friends. There are always super-sensitive ones who are sadly hurt, and others who are moved to anger. There are heartaches and disappointments—more than are acknowledged.

Contests of skill or scholarship, intelligence based on personal efforts for real improvement, are entirely different in principle. But the form of rivalry indicated in voting contests, especially those of beauty contests, has very negligible good.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

GERMAN FARMER EMIGRANTS

[Houston Post]

A colony of some 10,000 farmers of German descent residing in southern Russia are said to be casting their eyes toward southwest Texas with the view of colonizing in that section. They are declared to be dissatisfied with the soviet regime and are eager to emigrate to America.

The present immigration law which places restrictions on admissions to the country would have to be taken into consideration before the colonists, said to number 2000 families, could come in a body. They would have to come as citizens of Russia, although they are German in blood. And whether they would be desirable as citizens of Texas depends on their political, social and religious ideals.

Texas is big but it has no room for any body of people cherishing ideals that would prevent them from becoming Americans in spirit as well as in name. The fact that the colonists seeking admission are opposed to the bolsheviki is in their favor. But before they are welcomed we should know whether their religion or social customs, as well as their political ideas, as such as to permit them to obey American laws and support American institutions. We can very well do without any body of people, such as those who are now emigrating from Canada in preference to having English taught in their schools and to serving in the military forces when called to the defense of the country.

The fact that the proposed German colonists are farmers, and have been farmers in Russia since their ancestors emigrated there during the Napoleonic wars, makes them interesting prospects for Texas, however. This state's vast idle acres ought to be settled up and cultivated. Texas will welcome farmer immigrants, if they are of the right kind. Texas is familiar with the German farmer, for some of its most flourishing agricultural territory has been developed by farmers of German descent. There are no better farmers than the Germans, and our loyal German farmers are among the state's most useful citizens.

This is not the first time that German colonists have sought Texas. Many came in 1848, and others came before, and many since. Some of them landed at Galveston and went inland no further than Houston. Some of our most substantial citizens are descendants of members of these early colonists. Texas does not need any of Europe's surplus urban population, but substantial, right-thinking German farmers would not be unwelcome, for they would be an asset to the state.

ANOTHER PROCTOR FOR VERMONT

[Brooklyn Eagle]

From Vermont comes the announcement that Redfield Proctor wil be a candidate for governor in the republican primaries this year. He is the youngest son of the Redfield Proctor who was governor of that state in 1878, then secretary of war under President Harrison and later United States senator as the successor to George F. Edmunds. Senator Proctor's eldest son, Fletcher D. Proctor, was also governor of Vermont in 1906. In his administration began that emphasis upon state affairs which has been the dominating note of Vermont politics from his day to the present. The younger Proctor is vice-president of the Vermont Marble company, was a captain of engineers during the world war, has served in both branches of the Vermont legislature and has been prominent in the support and enlargement of various philanthropies in the state with which the Proctor family has been identified for two generations.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

"The Nation" is the title of a periodical printed in this country. One naturally would suppose that the name had been chosen by reason of devotion to the United States. The identity of the nation the editors seek to honor, is obscured. The fact stands out clearly that it is almost any other nation than this, probably Russia. The periodical is openly bolshevist. For this reason it loses any possible standing as an authority. Its expressions of opinion all bespeak prejudice against the republic that gives it haven.

HENRY JAMES

Recently "The Nation" has been attacking Samuel Gompers, who is openly opposed to bolshevism, and who is continually pointing out to organized labor the necessity of being on guard lest the poison propaganda of Moscow find its way into the ranks of the toilers. Of course, this is a rebuke to such publications as "The Nation," and to such individuals as Lincoln Steffens, and is resented. "The Nation" says that Gompers might as well be retired, "for other reasons than his Russian policy," of course not meaning anything of the kind. Gompers is a useful individual, favoring good order, a sincere American. The enmity of the pro-bolshevist and pro-German press and speakers is as fine a recommendation as he could have.

Freedom of the press is a principle sustained by the constitution, generally deemed wise and beneficent. That rascals hostile to this country take advantage of the license thus granted, is much to be regretted. It suggests the duty, however, of pointing out from time to time, the fact that they are rascals, their intent mischievious, their methods dispicable, and their chief weapon, falsehood.

In London there is said to be a campaign against transfusion of blood. Whether this is scientific, arising among surgeons, or the mere expression of prejudice, is not stated. Laymen had been led to believe that such transfusion was of great value.

It seems that in a recent operation of this type, the patient died almost at once, and the death of the supposedly strong person who had yielded the fluid followed immediately.

When the late Croker was at the head of Tammany, he acquired vast fortune. The New York World suspected that he had not saved this out of his pay as sachem, and propounded the query "Where did you get it, Mr. Croker?" This it repeated daily for quite awhile, evoking manifestations of wrath, but no direct answer. Indeed it was this question that drove Croker from power, for he realized that until he replied, he was to know no peace.

Whether Croker left a fortune, or the fortune had left him, does not appear. If the former should be the case, doubtless relatives will make a contest, and they won't care where he got it.

The best moonshine yarn comes from North Carolina. It relates that a man there is driving his automobile by moonshine liquor power. He makes the stuff as he rolls along, and instead of having to stop to fill the tank, pauses only to empty it of marketable whisky. "Moonshine" has more than one meaning. To say of a remarkable narration "That's all moonshine" is a common form of calling the narrator a liar.

There was a near riot at Los Angeles Sunday over certain decisions of the umpire. According to such observers as have been heard from the decisions should be classified as rotten.

Posibly there was a sense of disappointment that the disturbance was nipped short of actual battle. A fear has arisen that the Los Angeles team can't play good ball, in which case the patrons feel that they ought to have something for their money.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

This is how it happened.

I had known Latimer slightly for years. Every twelve-month or so we get together and always have a good time. Our tastes run much in common. The last time I took a trip with him he told me about Harry Free.

"He is a double-faced, underhanded, sneaking son of a gun," said Latimer.

I never thought to meet Free. The characterization made no particular impression on my mind—as I thought—one way or the other. I did not think of it again until a few months ago I happened to be thrown in Free's company. I found him a square, well read, truthful, honest man. Because of a concatenation of circumstances he had an opportunity to trim me like a sapling, and all in the way of legitimate business. I could not have complained. But he treated me better than I am accustomed to being treated and left me to find out the fact for myself.

I began to look back. I had known that Latimer is in bad condition physically. He has made a failure of his domestic life, he has wasted his money and he is not on the best terms with his firm. His outlook has become invariably pessimistic, and his judgment of men rarely errs on the side of charity and kindness. I know—for I believe that I have proven—that his characterization of Free was wrong and unjust and was prompted by his illness and dejection. Both men are square and kind, but of the two I believe Free to be the better man.

Yet—and I'm shamed of it—that sour, disgruntled, savage tirade of Latimer's sticks in my mind. I might well have become a close friend of Free. He is the sort of a man I like. His follies, even, are the sort of follies my heart warms to. He spends more money on books and guns and fishing tackle and dogs than he can afford. So do I. Then he may never use it. I have new cameras on my study shelves, but when I go out I take the battered old clock that has been my companion on many a voyage.

I despise myself because I cannot rid my mind of that acidity sown in it by Latimer. My feelings toward Latimer have changed. Sick or well, fortunate or unfortunate, no man has a right to depreciate another man without real cause. I would not willingly be in his company again.

Yet—and I know that I am picayune and minor because of it—I am consciously influenced by a slanderous statement I am sure is untrue.

GLENDALE WOMEN AT FEDERATION OF CLUBS

City Well Represented at Gathering of State Orgnaizations

Glendale was represented Wednesday by a goodly delegation at the convention of the State Federation of Women's clubs held in Bovard hall, University of Southern California, the group from the Tuesday Afternoon club including Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, president; Mrs. A. M. Williams, first vice-president; Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker, second vice-president; Mrs. C. W. Houston, Mrs. P. S. McNutt, Mrs. A. W. Tower, Mrs. Stephen Packer.

The program opened at 10 o'clock with Mrs. William A. Fitzgerald, state president, and Mrs. Sidney Thomas Exley, vice-president at large, presiding jointly.

The main feature of the session was an address on "The American Citizen" by Dr. Rufus B. Von Klein-Smid, president of the university. This was followed by reports of convention committees.

In the afternoon reports from state committees were received and the convention was entertained by the South Side Ebell club with a radio recital broadcasted from Hamburger's.

The chief address of the afternoon, "The Women's Light and Power Company" was made by Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, general federation director for California. Mrs. Burdette was the first state federation president. There was also discussion concerning the financing of the federation led by Mrs. Edward Dexter Knights.

An afternoon tea was given by the Ebell club officers, delegates and visiting club women which proved a very delightful affair, Mrs. Charles H. Toll of this city being the president of the club. It proved to be a tea with the tea left out, the refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake. A 4-piece orchestra furnished music.

In the evening the Hollywood Women's club gave a reception and musical for officers and delegates.

Today's program which concerns music, literature and art, will include an address by Mrs. Rose V. S. Berry, chairman of the fine arts department of the general federation of women's clubs. There will also be an address, "The Indian's Challenge to Our Present and Future" by the celebrated John Collier. The balance of the regular program will be devoted in great part to the reading of resolutions.

The great feature of the afternoon is to be the Helen Hunt Jackson memorial festival presented by the Wa Wan club at the Southwest Museum from 2:30 to 4:30. One of the chief numbers will be a pageant, "The Prenuptial Journey, or the Recovery of the Lost Song of Peace." It is described as an archaic Indian fantasy and is a one-act play by Virginia Calhoun who will be remembered in connection with the first production of the Mission Play and the stage production of "Ramona." The leading role will be taken by Georgie Moulton. She will be assisted by Booth W. Franklin of this city and others who have made reputations in work of this character. It will be accompanied by Indian music interpreted by harp and violin, and the prologue will be given by Gloria Mayne.

Joseph Scott will be the speaker of the afternoon.

MISS RICH HAS SURPRISE BIRTHDAY

Wednesday was the birthday of Miss Dorothy E. Rich, who is on the staff of library assistants under Mrs. Danford, city librarian. Yielding to Mrs. Danford's suggestion that they lunch together at the Glen Inn, the two betook themselves to the cafe there to find a table set for a real birthday celebration and other members of the staff awaiting them. Miss Rich was the recipient of a pretty birthday remembrance and it was a jolly occasion for all participants. Meanwhile the substitutes who are taking the library course, looked after affairs at the library.

OLD GLENDALIANS IN TEXAS HOSTS TO MOYSES

Mr. and Mrs. Willisford Greet Delegates to Templar Conclave

One of the very interesting incidents of the trip home from the Conclave of Knights Templar at New Orleans for Commander George Moyse and Past Commander Daniel Campbell, when a stop was made at Houston, was the discovery of Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Willisford and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kolts, and second daughter, Joy Willisford, waiting to greet them. They were promptly taken in tow by the Willisfords and shown as much of the city as was possible during their brief stay. They saw the church of which Dr. Willisford is pastor, the largest Congregational church in the city, which is beautiful in many ways. While the Willisfords have many pleasant memories of Glendale, where they lived for so many years and about which they were eager to hear all the news, they like Houston very much and find many climatic and other advantages. Dr. Willisford founded the Congregational church in this city and inaugurated the move for a new church building. During the world war he was in France in Y. M. C. A. work.

That money is not the root of all evil, but ways and means of securing it, was decided by the Winona Camp Fire Girls at their meting Tuesday at the M. E. church parlors.

A 2-weeks camping trip at Mount Baldy is being planned by the girls and their guardian, Mrs. St. Clair Whytock and as they are anxious to earn the money by their own efforts, a vigorous money campaign is being arranged. Saturday, May 27, they are to hold a candy sale at Neale & Gregg's and early in June a play will be staged for the entertainment of the mothers. As a side line an assortment of attractive receipt books secured from their national headquarters are being sold.

The camping trip will be held the first two weeks in July and is inspiring much enthusiasm and discussion.

ILLINOISANS POSTPONE

The Illinoisans were unable to secure their hall for the meeting Friday evening, the 5th of May, and it has been postponed to Thursday evening, the 11th of May, when it will be held in Forum Hall, 203 Mercantile Place. Chairman Brubaker will offer a popular program and dancing will follow. All Illinoisans are invited.

UTAH PIONEERS

"The Utah Pioneers" will be the topic on which Judge Frank S. Forbes will speak before the Utah state meeting Monday evening, May 8, in the Angelus Hotel hall, spring and Fourth streets, Los Angeleus. Judge Forbes will give a splendid review of the pioneers and all Utah people are invited. There will be musical numbers and dancing will follow the program.

DOCTOR YOUNG'S PARTY CAPTURE TROUT

Fourteen Big Ones Taken in Big Bear Packed in Snow

The fishing party composed of Dr. and Mrs. T. C. Young, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Worley, which left Sunday in Dr. Young's car for the new "Moon camp" at Big Bear, returned Tuesday evening full of enthusiasm over the pleasures of the trip. The party managed to get 14 large trout which they packed away in the big snow bank at the back of the cabin they occupied. Never had any of them seen as much snow at Big Bear nor found the lake so high as it is now. The desert through which they passed enroute is fairly ablaze with wild flowers of every hue, they report, and a most beautiful sight.

TOY SHOP WINS APPRECIATION

Mrs. W. A. Kulp Entertains Teachers Who Drilled Program

The teachers of Intermediate who arranged and drilled the children for the "Toy Shop" entertainment given last Friday night, were guests of honor at a tea given by Mrs. W. A. Kulp, president of the Parent-Teacher association of the school, at her home on Vine street Wednesday afternoon. The teachers present were Miss Salstrom, who had general charge of the entertainment, and Misses Carrie Noble, principal, Vera Sinclair, Carol Duncan, Edna Duffey, Gertrude Grider and Alice Lookabaugh.

Room mothers of the eighth grade were also guests, as follows: Mesdames Preston, Hanning, Mottern, Fife, Buck, Chapman, Ingrum and Searles.

It was an informal social afternoon. Delicious cake and tea were served and Mrs. Ingrum poured. The ladies were entertained with piano and vocal numbers by the daughters of the hostess, Wilma and Frances Kulp.

K. OF C. GUESTS OF BOOSTERS CLUB

The meeting of the Glendale Knights of Columbus last night was a little different from the ordinary. The local lodge was entertained by the Boosters club and the Choral society of the Los Angeles lodge of the order.

The Los Angeles knights furnished music, entertainers and "eats." This was to even up the score between the Glendale lodge and the Los Angeles lodge. Several weeks ago the Glendalians entertained the Angelenos.

Purely Personal

W. T. Harbert, who came to the Southland recently from Twin Falls, Idaho, as agent for a big life insurance company, located first in Long Beach, but, hearing so much about Glendale, came to investigate and was so charmed with the city and its business outlook that he decided to settle down here. He has office room with Dr. Rossiter, 201-A West Broadway and has engaged a house at 206 North Verdugo road. His wife, their son and his wife and baby will join him here about the 20th of this month.

Mrs. F. A. Browne and son, Charles H. Deaves of Hollywood were Wednesday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Thompson, 121 1-2 Louise Court.

A number of Glendalians are planning on a week end trip on Saturday to Palmdale. Those who expect to take the trip ar Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Worley, 341 North Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cain, recently of Cincinnati, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Franklin of La Crescenta and Mrs. Price Holmes of Monrovia.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Staley and Dr. and Mrs. E. Leslie Gaines, report splendid luck at a fishing party they recently enjoyed at the Sespe.

Dr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Mathews of Needles, Calif., were recent guests of Dr. Hannah Hukill, 102 West California.

The C. C. C. class of the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday school recently entertained the high school department at the home of Miss Agnes Caldwell, 326 West Wilson. Theer were about thirty guests present and the evening was spent in games and music.

The regular monthly business meeting of the W. F. M. S. society will be held at the home of Mrs. Teasdale, 445 West Acacia street, on Friday afternoon at 2 p. m. A missionary from India will be present at the meeting.

On account of so many of the members of the Kensington club, planning on a trip to Riverside on Monday, the 8th, the regular meeting of the club will not be held until the third Wednesday of the month.

Chapter C. J., P. E. O. will hold its "Mother's Day" meeting today at the home of Martha Cox, corner of Maple and Central avenue. There will be a luncheon, followed by a program. The members of the chapter are expected to bring their mothers to this affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moore of Vine street, Mr. and Mrs. Boothby, 348 West Lexington, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Westlake ofg Inglewood expect to go to Pal Springs for the week-end.

Mrs. John Herbert Sturgis of Calipatria, Imperial valley, is a visitor in the home of D. L. Sturgis, 310 North Cedar street. She arrived Tuesday and will be the guest of her father-in-law for several days.

MOCK MINCE MEAT

Eight quarts tomatoes, five pounds brown sugar, one pound white sugar, one pound currants, two pounds raisins, two teaspoons ground cinnamon, two teaspoons nutmeg, one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon ginger, two cups suet, one cup boiled cider, or six good cooking apples. Chop tomatoes and drain, cover with cold water. Scald and drain. Repeat process. Then cook all together for one hour. Put in jars.

LEMON SNOW

One-half cup sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, one cup boiling water, two tablespoons lemon juice, two egg whites. Mix all the dry ingredients, add a little of the boiling water slowly, stirring constantly. Pour this into remaining water and stir until smooth. Cover and cook 15 minutes after it has thickened. Pour slowly over the beaten whites, flavor and when thick pour into molds to set. Serve with custard sauce made with two egg yolks and flavor with vanilla.

LEMON CRUMB PUDDING

MAY QUEEN OF CERRITOS NAMES COURT

the approach of Her Majesty, the Queen, who will kneel to receive her crown and wand of authority at the hands of Spring (Geraldine Manghan).

At this poing the Song of Spring will be sung by the professional soprano, Mrs. Virginia Freeman, who has graciously consented to help the pretty affair by lending her beautiful voice. Mrs. Young will act as her accompanist.

Other numbers for the entertainment of the court will then be given in the order assigned, interspersed with orchestral numbers. There will be, for example, a wreath drill by girls of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades; a Maypole dance by children of the kindergarten under the direction of Miss Atwood.

A Robin Hood Revel by 110 children from five grades will be directed by Mrs. McReynolds and Miss McKay. All the characters famous in the outlaw's band will be represented, viz. "Bugler," Harold Birche; "Herald," George Karcher; "Robin Hood," Joseph Steelman; "Maid Marian," Louise Stecker; "Friar Tuck," Lee Blair; "Jester Byron," Clement; "Little John," Virgil Todd; "Will Stutley," Richard White; "Jack o' the Green," John Olsen; "The Fiddler," Joseph Kneisel; "Hobby Horse," Kermet Swanson. In this revel will be three episodes, the first of which will tell how Little John was named. The second will be an archers' contest, and the third a milkmaids' dance. The milkmaids will be Louise Stecker, Martha Warfield, Marjorie Warner, Dorothy Erskine, Margaret Stull, Bettie Grant, Mary Glora, Davina Wood, Grace Jackson, Johanna Newbery and Opal Clouse.

Following this elaborate number will be a drill of Johnny Jumpups and Butterflies, as represented by the children of the third grade under Miss May Aldrich.

Then will come two more big numbers. The first of these will be the Maypole spider-web dance by 130 girls of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, who have been drilled by Mrs. McReynolds and Miss McKay, and who will sing "Sweet Springtime." Boys of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades will then execute a military drill, directed by Mr. Samis.

Games of various sorts will follow, ending with the beautiful kite tournament arranged by Miss Alta Gaynor, for which there are 40 entries to date, each kite being the work of the boy who will fly it and compete for the prize offered.

The program outlined should bring out a large attendance of parents and friends, and after it is concluded the booths for the sale of peanuts, pop, ice cream, candy, cakes, flowers, etc., should do a lively business. There will be a country store, a grab bag for the entertainment of the kindergarteners, hot-dog booths and fancywork counters. A dinner will be served at 6 o'clock or thereabouts, and in the evening a continuous moving picture show will furnish entertainment.

Entries for the pet stock show now number 20 ,and this is likely to prove a great attraction to the juveniles of the audience, especially lovers of dogs, as these will be in the majority.

SCALLOPED EGGS.

REV. M'QUILKIN TELLS OF NEW CONFERENCE

Describes Victorious Life Work Since First Session

Rev. Robert C. McQuilkin, of Philadelphia, was at the Presbyterian church last evening and made an address during the prayer meeting hour. Mr. McQuilkin told briefly of the history of the Victorious Life conferences, the first one being held in Whittier four years ago. From that gathering they have grown until they are held all over the United States and in foreign countries. He outlined the plans and purposes of the meetings and much interest was shown n the coming conference. Much publicity has been given to this conference and visitors are expected to attend from all over Southern California.

Many visitors were present last evening, among them being Prof. J. A. Morris Kimber of Hollywood, who was one of the originators of the Victorious Life conferences.

The local arrangements are in charge of J. A. Newton. G. F. Snyder and D. L. Foster of the local Presbyterian church have arranged pre-conference prayer meetings, to be held tomorrow evening at the following homes: J. B. Colvin, 1235 East Lexington; W. A. Horn, 221 North Louise; A. G. Mitchell, East Elk; Glenn B. Porter, 344 Salem street; James F. Crawford, 1116 South Glendale. These groups will meet in prayer for the annual Southern California Victorious Life conference, which is to be held here next week from May 7 to 14 inclusive.

RIFLE SHOOT ON GLENDALE RANGE

Matches Will Be Annual Rising Bear Shot

A match of great interest is to be staged by the Los Angeles Rifle and Revolver club on the Glendale range next Sunday morning. The matches will be the annual rising bear shoot and will include several events.

Pistol enthusiasts will be glad to learn that there will be ample opportunity to demonstrate their ability in the 20-shot pistol match which will be held on the 50-yard range. Visitors are invited to attend.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

WILLIE'S NEW LEAF

Willie was always hungry. He was always in a hurry. He was generally late for meals. He snapped at his food and bolted it, half chewed, and had terrible table manners and seemed to pay not the slightest attention to frequent entreaties to take his elbows off the table and to stop kicking the rungs of his chair.

Then his father had to go abroad and Willie's mother wanted to go with him. The problem was how to dispose of Willie.

The solution was that his aunt come and keep house for him until his parents returned. In this way Willie's school work was not interrupted and the arrangement was believed to be most satisfactory to all.

As she packed her trunks the day before her departure, Willie's mother talked to Aunt Sara, who had just arrived from the homestead in New England that had been the boyhood home of Willie's father.

Mother Tells of Boy's Faults

"I don't know what you will do with Willie. He is perfectly hopeless. I am ashamed of his table manners. In fact, he has none. Public school, I suppose. Dear only knows who his companions are," sighed the pretty little inconsequential mother, folding a rose silk petticoat over her arm.

"But I leave him entirely to you. He is always eating between meals. I suppose boys are always hungry."

And with a thoughtless kiss dropped somewhere in the region of Willie's nose, next day his mother went off to Europe.

Aunt Sara, after a session with the black cook, decided that some one should turn over a new leaf for Willie, so far as his meals were concerned at least.

"The child is simply hungry all the time because he is not being properly fed," she decided.

Aunt Turns Over Willie's Leaf

So she turned over the leaf.

Willie dashed in for lunch the first day, late as usual, and very sketchily washed as to hands and face.

"Oh, gee! Vegetable soup?" he chorted, and attacked his steaming plate with a will. "We generally just have cold scraps left over from dinner the night before for lunch," he confided frankly.

"Your father always had dinner at noon when he was going to school," said Aunt Sara, helping the boy to boiled meat and two vegetables and scooping out a big baked potato for him.

After a dessert of baked apple and a glass of milk Willie went off to school leisurely. And for the first time Diana's cookie jar was not raided that afternoon after school.

Thrives Under New Regime

Instead of dinner at 8 o'clock there was supper at 6 for the small boy, which left him ample time to attend to his lessons and get to bed before 9 o'clock. Willie demurred at first but when assured that his father had always been in bed at 9 o'clock when he was ten, Willie gave in with a good grace and even hugged Aunt Sara goodnight.

A breakfast of orange juice and cereal, stewed fruit and bran bread, with a glass of milk and a boiled egg was another innovation.

And dinner at noon became a part of Willie's new "leaf."

An amazing result of Aunt Sara's regime was that as he became properly nourished Willie's table manners improved. And he gained weight.

NOTICE OF SALE OF STOCK OF MERCHANDISE IN BULK

Notice is hereby given that on the 12th day of May, 1922, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, the stock of merchandise consisting chiefly of groceries and meats, fruits and vegetables, which business is located in the City of Glendale, Los Angeles County and State of California at 1100 East Broadway, in said City, which sale includes the sale of furniture and fixtures, will be made in bulk by F. D. Dunham as vendor to W. M. Kettles as vendee; that the transfer will be made at the Glendale Branch of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank in said City of Glendale at the time stated.

The name and address of the vendor is 1100 East Broadway, in said City of Glendale.

The name and address of the vendee is 1102 East Broadway, in said City of Glendale.

That the consideration and purchase price thereof is twenty-two hundred and fifty-four ($2254.00) dollars, and will be paid over at the said bank at the time stated.

(Signed) F. D. DUNHAM,
Vendor.

Dated this 4th day of May, 1922.

Press Radio Department

EDITED BY N. D. GARVER

AMPLIFIERS (Continued)
By C. E. WEAVER
Mgr. Radio Dept., J. A. Newton Electric Co.

AUDIO FREQUENCY AMPLIFIERS.—The usual method of coupling the detector to the amplifier or from one stage of amplification to the next is almost entirely done by an iron core step-up transformer. This core is of the laminated type and each lamination or layer should be very thin and well insulated from each other. The ratio on the transformer depends entirely on the tubes to be used in the set, that is, the impedence to an alternating current of the transformer should be equal to that of the tube in order to obtain maximum efficiency. However, almost any transformer now on the market can be used with very good results. The step-up ratio varies from 1 to 6 on the primary against 1 to 9 on the secondary of your tuner. The transformer with the high ratio is preferred on account of the higher voltage impressed upon the tube; however, if the ratio is too high, distortion will take place. It can readily be seen, therefore, that the plate circuit of each tube in which is inserted the primary of an amplifying transformer should have approximately the same amount of voltage impressed upon it.

There are two distinct types of audio frequency amplification, power and voltage.

CASCADE AMPLIFICATION—This is merely another term used to designate two or more stages of either audio or radio frequency amplification.

RESISTANCE COUPLED AMPLIFIERS—This system utilizes a high resistance, usually 1 to 5 meg ohms (a meg ohm is 1,000,000 ohms), connected between the negative side of the plate battery and the filament. The advantage of such a coupling is useful for radio frequency amplification and in the fact that it requires no adjustment. The disadvantages lie in the necessity for increased plate battery potentials over the other types, as it is necessary for the current from the plate battery to flow through the resistance.

CHOKE COIL AMPLIFIER—In a choke coil amplifier the high resistance coil of the above mentioned circuit is replaced by an inductance or choke coil. This system has several marked advantages,—that the plate circuit has a low direct current resistance and, as a consequence, much lower voltage may be used in the plate circuit; and that it is possible to have tuned amplification. If a variable condenser is shunted across or around the inductances, one can gain enormous selectivity of signals. This type of amplifier is used for radio frequency also.

ARE WE RIGHT, MEN?

Ashes to ashes,

John—"Just so that I can see the messages coming in, dear."

QUESTIONS—ANSWERS

Q.—How can I find how many meters my wave length is?—Durword Blennor.

Ans.—59.6 times the square root of your inductance multiplied by your capacity; 300,000,000 divided by your frequency will give you wave length. The wave length of the aerial may be computed: Length of the aerial plus the length of the ground wire multiplied by the number of wires in the aerial. Divide the result by 3.25, which is the length of one meter, and the result will be the approximate wave length of the aerial. If you cannot understand these formulas, bring up the necessary data and I will help you work it out.

WITH THE RADIO CLUB

The votes taken at the last class meeting resulted as follows:

Name of club—Glendale Radio club, 49 votes; Glendale Radio association, 5 votes.

For secretary—George Drinkwater, 56; Fred Peck, 6.

For president—Robert Burns, 19; Glenn Bronner, 19; Fletcher West, 11; Wallace Haynes, 18.

Now, from the variation in number of votes, it can be readily seen that another vote will be necessary, especially for president and vice president. Votes for president show there were at least 67 people present, while votes for secretary show only 62 present, and club votes show only 54 present. The attendance record shows 71 present, so it looks as though another vote is absolutely necessary and will be taken up the first thing Saturday night so every one try and be there and get the voting over with, and also in order that it won't be necessary for us to review on next Monday night as we had to review last night.

OSCILLATORY DISCHARGE

Relation of Resistance to Capacity

Whether the discharge from a condenser is a single surge of current in one direction or is oscillatory in character depends upon the relation that the resistance of the circuit bears to the values of inductance and capacity in the circuit. As already mentioned, inductance is produced by a coiled conductor while capacity is represented by a condenser; but it must be borne in mind that all conductors have inductance because a current may flow either in or on them; they also have capacity due to their surface. All conductors naturally have resistance and, in the case of an oscillatory circuit, this resistance also includes that of the open space in the circuit, known as the spark gap, or discharger, the resistance of which is an important factor. In a charged condensed, assuming a two-plate type to simplify the explanation, one of the opposed surfaces is at a positive potential while the other is at an equally high negative potential. Let these surfaces be connected by very fine wires the ends of which are gradually brought close together until the discharge takes place. In such a circuit, the capacity is high and the inductance has a very low value, but the value of the resistance, which is represented by fine conducting wires and the large opening of a spark gap, is excessive.

The discharge of the condenser through such a circuit would accordingly be undirectional and would be comparatively slow, in which the amplitude of the current wave represents the time taken to complete the discharge. A simple mechanical analogy to this form of discharge is the passage of water from one branch of a "U" tube to the other through a very small opening, in a disc at the bottom. When water is poured into one arm of the tube, it runs very slowly through the disc so that when it reaches the common level in the right hand branch it subsides without further movement.

If, with the water all in the left branch, however, the disc be quickly lifted or removed so as to open the full bore of the passage connecting the two arms, there is immediately a rush of water from the left hand to the right hand branch. Owing to its inertia, the water will rise to a point far above its original level and will then fall back and rise beyond its former level in the opposite arm of the tube, continuing this alteration from one to the other with gradually decreasing rise and fall during each cycle until the resistance of the walls of the tube plus that of the air causes it to come to rest with half of the water in each branch. The pulling out of the disc to open the full bore of the passage is similar to the action that takes place in the condenser when the resistance of the circuit permits a quick rush of current from the condensed rather than a comparatively slow leakage, which does not permit the current to attain any inertia. Thus the discharge of the condensed is accomplished. To bring this about, it is necessary to connect the condensed with heavier wire, make the opening between the two terminals of the spark gap very much smaller and include in the circuit an increased value of inductance. The terminals of the wires representing the spark gap must also have plain or circular surfaces rather than points, as the discharge tends to leak away through pointed terminals. The resistance of the circuit has now been greatly lessened and its self-induction greatly increased by the additional inductance of the coil.

CARE OF YOUR "A" BATTERY
By THOS. L. CURRIE
of W. H. Hooper & Co.

Seperators and Envelopes

In some types of plates, to prevent the active material from shedding or loosening from the grid, envelopes were used on the grids of pasted variety. This style of seperator has been discarded and manufacturers have succeeded in perfecting a satisfactory type of plate, thereby eliminating the envelope and entirely using a plate of insulative material between the positive and negative plates. If the construction were such that particles of active matter would fall off, envelopes would be a necessity for if those are used the atoms of paste could not separate from the plate and distribute at the bottom of the cell, ultimately forming a short circuit between the plates. Separators, on the other hand, are being used in all batteries being placed between the adjacent plates which enclosed in hard rubber or celluloid envelopes. Hard rubber, glass and wood are the materials usually employed for this purpose. A seperator should be as thin as possible and consistent with strength plentifully perforated to allow thorough circulation of acid. Hard rubber is used whenever the element of cost is not a primary consideration, as this material can be made in very thin sheets and still be strong enough for the purpose. A large number of small perforations are to be preferred to a smaller number of large perforations, as there is a less opportunity for the particles of loosened active material passing through the holes and the active material exposed to the electrolyte is more evenly distributed on the plate.

Factors Which Control Efficiency

The efficiency of the battery is the ratio of useful current or emergency given on the discharge to that put into it on charge. The ampere hour efficiency is the useful discharge in an ampere hour, divided by the number of ampere hours put on the charge, and most small batteries are usually rated in ampere hours. The efficiency of a battery depends on the charging and discharging rates, internal resistance, thickness and porosity of layer of active material and density, quantity, and affusion or electrolyte; length of time between end of discharge and beginning of next charge, freedom from local action and temperature. In charging a certain amount of energy is lost in evolution of gasses, in heat, in counter electromotive force due to polarization, and in amount which is somewhat proportional to the rate of discharge. On discharge energy is lost in heat and polarization and these losses also increase with the discharge rate. As previously stated, the thickness and porosity of the active material influence the values of internal resistance and consequently efficiency. These problems of manufacture have been given every attention of the producers of storage batteries for radio work, and the types accepted as standard by the user and will afford every satisfaction if the hints for their charging and maintenance, which are presented in proper sequence are followed. In the diagram contained with the first of these articles on "A" batteries, the internal construction of a typical battery was shown very clearly. The cut also showed the relation of the plates, the separation of both wooden and hard rubber sheets aud the other side of the cut showed a battery which had been badly overcharged, causing the plates to become buckled and cracked, allowing same to pinch through the seperators, which means short circuit between positive and negative plates.

Most radio batteries are built with from 5 to 15 plates to the cell, depending upon capacity, the object of more plates per cell being to increase the available area which makes for greater capacity. These batteries have a difference of poetential of about 2.2 volts per cell between terminals when fully charged.

TRANSATLANTIC RADIO BEFORE YEAR ENDS

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Before this year is ended, Secretary of State Hughes may be able to converse with Ambassadors Harvey in London, Herrick in Paris and Houghton in Berlin, simply by lifting a telephone receiver off the hook.

So rapid is the progress being made in radio telephony, that within a few months or a year citizens of one country will be able to talk with the people of another country thousands of miles away with little more difficulty than they now find in calling up their neighbors, the National Geographic Society stated today in a survey of radio developments.

The United States is particularly well equipped with radio facilities for talking across the seas as the bulk of the most powerful radio stations in the world either are in this country or under the control of this government. Radio telephony is making rapid progress and soon will catch up with its slightly older brother—radio telegraphy—the society stated.

Longest Wave Length

Only one radio station in the world uses regularly a longer wave length than any station under the control of this government. And this station was built by the United States navy. It is the Lafayette station at Bordeaux, France. Its wave length is 23,000 meters, approximately 14 miles. Messages from this station are received in Washington—4000 miles from the source. The Lafayette station occasionally is heard in French Indo-China, 6,000 miles away. The navy erected the station during the war and then sold it to France.

However, the Lafayette station will not hold first place long, as its supremacy is being challenged by the commercial station recently opened on Long Island. This station uses a wave length of 19,000 meters, or nearly 12 miles, and is employed in transmitting messages to Germany, a distance of about 4,000 miles. Additional units now planned will give this station a greater wave length

The United States navy's station at Annapolis, Md.* is assigned a wave of 17,145 meters (roughly 10 1-2 miles), the third longest in use, but it is easily one of the world's most powerful stations. So is the navy station at Cavite, Philippine Islands, operating on 13,900 meters. The navy depends on the Annapolis station—which is operated, incidentally, by remote control by means of keys in the navy building in Washington—to transmit messages day in and day out over a radius of about 5,500 miles.

The United States navy has the most complete system of high power land stations for radio telegraphy of all naval establishments. Southward of the great Annapolis station it has among its larger units the sending plant at Cayay, Porto Rico, using a 10,510 meter wave, and another at Balboa, Canal Zone, sending on 10,110 meters. The eastern portion of the Pacific is covered from the continent by a station at San Diego, Cal., and another on Puget Sound. The former uses waves of 9,800 meters and the latter of 7,100. In the Hawaiian Islands the navy has two sending stations, one using 11,500 meters and the other 8,875. On Guam is a naval station which sends on 9,145 meters; and finally, in the Philippines is the 13,900 meter station.

In practically no place where its ships are likely to cruise will they be out of range of one or more of the navy's sending stations.

WIFE MURDERER KILLED BY POSSE

Henry Brandstetter Shot in Brush by Officers on His Trail

SAN DIEGO, May 4.—A sheriff's posse today brought in the body of Henry Brandstetter, wife murderer, whom they shot to death in the mountains near here when he refused to surrender.

They also brought the body of Mrs. Brandstetter, who was shot four times by her husband in the home of friends in Borrego valley, 70 miles northeast of this city on the edge of the desert, yesterday morning.

Brandstetter, a rancher, and his wife quarreled Monday. She left her home and went to the home of friends. Her husband called there yesterday, shot her down with a revolver, and then placed the weapon directly over her heart and fired another shot. He was surrounded in the desert brush by a posse just before dusk. He reached for his revolver and several officers fired. Brandstetter was dead when they reached his side.

BOULDER DAM IS DISCUSSED IN L. A.

A delegation from Las Vegas, Nev., spoke before the Los Angeles chamber of commerce yesterday on the subject of cooperation of Los Angeles and Nevada in the completion of the Boulder Creek dam in Nevada. Assistant Secretary E. F. Sanders of the Glendale chamber of commerce attended the meeting as a representative of the local organization.

According to Mr. Sanders the delegation from Nevada had representatives of all the principal industries of that state. They came to California to create a friendly feeling between the two states and the political cooperation necessary to secure the dam. They stated that Los Angeles and Southern California would derive practically as much benefit from this project as would the state of Nevada.

NOTICE OF STREET WORK

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE ON THE 27TH DAY OF APRIL, 1922, DID, AT ITS MEETING ON SAID DAY, ADOPT A RESOLUTION OF INTENTION, NUMBER 1481, DECLARING AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. That the public interest and convenience require and it is the intention of the Council of the City of Glendale to order the following work and improvement to be done, to-wit:

First: That Granada Street from the southerly curb line of Lomita Avenue to the northerly line of Maple Street, including all intersections and terminations of streets and alleys, except those portions as are already graded to the official line and grade, be graded to the official grade heretofore established therefor, the same to be done in accordance with Map No. 477, Profile No. 835, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 39.

Second: That a cement sidewalk of the width of five (5) feet be constructed along each side of Granada Street from the southerly curb line of Lomita Avenue to a line two hundred thirty and ninety hundredths (230.90) feet southerly from and parallel to the southerly line of Lomita Avenue and along the easterly side of Granada Street from said line drawn two hundred thirty and ninety hundredths (230.90) feet southerly from and parallel to the southerly line of Lomita Avenue to the northerly curb line of Maple Street, with curb returns at all intersecting or terminating streets, except where sidewalk is already constructed to the official line and grade. Said work to be done in accordance with Map No. 477, Profile No. 835, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 31.

Third: That a cement curb of the class designated as Class "B" in the hereinafter referred to Specifications be constructed along each side of the roadway of Granada Street from the southerly curb line of Lomita Avenue to a line two hundred thirty and ninety hundredths (230.90) feet southerly from and parallel to the southerly line of Lomita Avenue and along the easterly side of the said roadway from said line two hundred thirty and ninety hundredths (230.90) feet southerly from and parallel to the southerly line of Lomita Avenue to the northerly curb line of Maple Street, including all returns at all intersecting or terminating streets and alleys, except where said curbs have already been constructed to the official line and grade. Said curbs shall be constructed in accordance with Map No. 477, Profile No. 835, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 31.

Fourth: That all of the roadway of Granada Street between curb lines from the southerly curb line of Lomita Avenue to a line two hundred thirty and ninety hundredths (230.90) feet southerly from and parallel to the southerly line of Lomita Avenue and between the easterly curb line and the westerly line of Granada Street from said line two hundred thirty and ninety hundredths (230.90) feet southerly from and parallel to the southerly line of Lomita Avenue to the northerly line of Maple Street, including all intersections and intersections of streets and alleys, be oiled and surfaced in accordance with Map No. 477, Profile No. 835, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 39.

SECTION 2. That pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of the State of California approved February 27, 1893, and the Acts amendatory thereto, serial bonds bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum shall be issued to represent assessments of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars or over for the cost of said work or improvement; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending nine (9) years from and after the second day of January next succeeding the date of said bonds, and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable by coupon on the second day of January, every year after their date until the whole is paid; and the interest shall be payable semi-annually by coupon on the second days of January and July, respectively, of each year, at the rate of 7 per cent per annum on all sums unpaid, until the whole of said principal and interest is paid.

SECTION 3. The City Engineer is directed to make a diagram of the property affected or benefitted by the proposed work or improvement, as described herein and to be assessed to pay the cost and expenses thereof. Such diagram shall show each separate lot, piece or parcel of land, the area in square feet in each of such lots, pieces or parcels of land, and the relative location of the same to the work proposed to be done, all within the limits of the assessment district, and such other matters as are required by law.

SECTION 4. All Maps, Cross-sections, Plans and Profiles referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Engineer of said City. All Specifications referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Clerk of said City. Said Maps, Plans, Cross sections, Profiles and Specifications are hereby referred to for a more particular description of said work and made a part hereof.

The district to be assessed to pay the costs and expenses of said work and improvement is described in Resolution of Intention No. 1481, to which said Resolution of Intention reference is hereby made for further particulars of said work.

TUJUNGA FAVORS SCHOOL BONDS UNANIMOUSLY

Only Precinct in District to Cast All Votes for Issue

TUJUNGA, May 4.—Complete returns from the high school bond election held on Tuesday show a total of 37 votes cast in Tujunga, all for the bonds. This was the only precinct in the entire district that cast a unanimous vote in favor of the issue, which calls for $600,000 in bonds to be used in the construction of buildings on the site recently purchased. The new site is located on Verdugo road between Broadway and Colorado boulevard, and will be easier of access to Tujunga pupils than the present location.

The election board consisted of David Costella, inspector, Elizabeth Benedict, judge, and Mary Lewis, judge.

LIZZIES CLAMOR THROUGH THE STREETS

Jesse Smith and R. Allan Demonstrate "Across the Continent"

There was a terrible rattle in town this morning.

It was in the form of a parade that journeyed up and down the streets of Glendale with horns tooting and whistles blowing and rattles rattling. It was surely a noisy procession. Many of the folks came out to see what it was all about, and they found Ralph Allen, manager of the T. D. & L. theater, driving a "Lizzie" leading the procession, and Jesse Smith, local Ford agent, bringing up the rear, with a dozen or more noisy, screaming, shouting flivvers making up the middle of the procession.

And to think that Wallie Reid, the movie actor, started all the trouble.

Here's how—

Wallace got it into his head he could win a transcontinental race in which all of the fastest cars in the country were entered. He offered $25,000 to the winner, and he entered the race in a Dent—alli-same Ford—which was manufactured by his dad. To make a long story short, friend Wal won the race. A motion picture reproduction of that race will be shown again tonight at the T. D. & L. theater, and the parade today was held to remind the people of Glendale of that fact. Needless to say, it accomplished the desired result.

But where did Jesse Smith come in?

Listen! Jesse is agent for the Ford, and as the car that won that ocean to ocean race was a car that corresponds very favorably with a Ford, Jesse figured the winning of the race was quite a stunt, and he wanted to remind the people of Glendale that the Ford is just as good a car as is the Dent. In fact, it could be taken for the same car.

So there you are. That's why Allen headed the procession and Smith "brought up the rear." Anyway, this "Across the Continent" picture is something great, and the car that figures in the picture is equally as wonderful.

THE COUNSELORS

Jiggs wants a five; he's broke again.
Jiggs, most delightful of all men,
Who writes of thrift, in manner grave,
And tells young people how to save.
He is a counselor and friend,
He knows finance from A to end,
The best thrift counselor alive,
But Jiggs is broke—he wants a five.

Biggs has a grouch—the world goes wrong
With Biggs as it has gone for long.
His face is stern, his manner sad,
And everything gone to the bad.
He cuts me off with curt, short speech,
His heart I cannot find or reach,
He is so grouchy and severe—
Biggs writes the daily line of cheer.

Sniggs has a pain, an ache, an ail,
I hear him grumble, grunt and wail
He takes a pill, and one again,
And is a martyr to new pain.
Sniggs says his stomach is a pest,
That lunch he ate did not digest,
And every day he has a spell—
Sniggs writes "How People May Keep Well!"

Sue is a frump; her hair awry,
And great locks hang down on her eye.
Her shoes are floppy, loose and wide,
Her skirt hangs lower on one side.
Her hat's a sight; she has a smile,
But really not a bit of style.
Her color scheme is just a mess,
She does the "Hints on Modish Dress."

Yet if you follow Sue's advice,
Your dress will be amazing nice;
And Jiggs will show you how to save,
And Biggs keep you from being grave;
No better man than Sniggs to tell
How you may keep both strong and well;
Yet there's the grouch, the dress awry,
The pain, the five—I wonder why!

GLENDALE SHEET METAL WORKS HEATERS

Manager Discourses Upon Various Types of Plants on the Market

Every home must have its heat, and if there is to be heat there must be a heater. Whether it be a modest bungalow or an expensive mansion there must be some way of heating it in the colder months.

"There are a large number of different kinds of heaters on the market today," said the manager of the Glendale Sheet Metal Works, 127 North Glendale avenue, this morning, "and naturally some of these are better than the others. We have made a study of gas heaters for the past several years and are handling only the kinds that we believed to give the most satisfactory service. It was a question of elimination with us, and the heaters that we are offering to the public we believe cannot be surpassed in any respect."

The famous Braasch floor furnace, which is handled by this concern, has passed the age of experiment, and is now installed in more than six thousand homes in Southern California, and in each of these homes it is giving satisfactory service every day. Its heating capacity includes two average sized rooms, comfortably maintaining an atmosphere of warm, fresh air, constantly circulating, and changing, through the unique arrangement of its installation. Under ordinary circumstances the operation of this heater averages not more than 2 cents per hour.

The "Magic Way" furnace is one of the most convenient, economical and sanitary ways of burning gas in the home. This heating system can be installed in homes of any size. It heats evenly and comfortably any part of the house, and there are no fumes or wasted heat. This heater is electrically controlled, and each unit heats from 5000 to 6000 cubic feet of air space. It is made of rust-resisting metal and it will not burn out.

The Braasch cast iron radiators are made of fine rust-resisting iron, and is built for permanence and beauty. It is convenient in size, simple in operation. The circulation of the coils is so complete that they heat very rapidly. Because they are made of cast iron they hold the heat much longer than if made of pressed steel. The gas can be turned very low and the heater will maintain an even, comfortable heat at a slight cost.

Every heater that is sold by the Glendale Sheet Metal Works is fully guaranteed. Until the customer is thoroughly satisfied the sale is not considered made.

'TREND OF TIMES' TO BE GIVEN TONIGHT

Harry Girard's Exquisite Idyl to Be Given at C. of C.

The premier performance on this coast of Harry Girard's beautiful composition, "The Trend of Time," which has been so favorably received by eastern critics, takes place tonight in the auditorium of the chamber of commerce, under the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's club of this city.

It is an event of interest to every music lover, but especially musicians, who should fill the house with appreciative listeners. Mr. Girard has been most generous with his talent and has always responded when asked to contribute to a program. On an occasion of this kind, when the program is so peculiarly his own, the city should show its appreciation of past courtesies, when it can do so with such pleasure and profit.

It has been described as a musical idyl, and with the assistance of the other two members of the quartette, Mr. and Mrs. Henri Le Bonti, the composition is certain to be beautifully interpreted.

Every member of the Business and Professional Women's club should be there with as many friends as possible, and the large circle of acquaintances which Mr. and Mrs. Girard have acquired should also be well represented. Tickets can be secured from members of the association or at the door, and cost but 75c for single admissions or 25c for children.

TROUT LIMIT IS CAUGHT BY M'BAIN

A fishing party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McBain, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne L. Tracy and Harry G. McBain, proprietor of McBain's grocery store, 636 East Broadway, returned Tuesday evening from a jaunt up in the Matilija Springs country, about 35 miles north of Ventura, where they enjoyed a stay of two days. "Mac" says that all of the party got the limit every day, which means that there were plenty of fish for all. The last of the catch was consumed this morning for breakfast. Mr. McBain says that he never saw so many fish for the first of the season as are in evidence this year. They are everywhere, he says.

AUTO SHOP COURSE AT EVENING HI IS POPULAR

Cars Taken Out, Reassembled, Engines Overhauled in Work

By Bert Rolfe

The Auto Shop evening course has proven to be very popular. Seventy-five per cent of the students enrolled at the beginning of the year still find it profitable. Cars are taken down and re-assembled, engines over-hauled, which gives the car user his first hand information about the car and up-keep of cars. Efforts are made by the instructor to met each individual problem, whether it be one engaged in the trade, or the owner or driver. We have room for a few more students beginning the new spring term.

Machine Shop Night Course

By Morgan N. Smith

The Machine Shop course offers unlimited opportunity for advancement in any of the trades. In our class at the present time we have carpenters, automobile mechanics, auto salesmen, electricians, clerks, aviators, mechanics and business men.

A person has only to think for a few moments of the wonderful advancement of things mechanical to readily see how much good any person could get out of a machine shop course.

To say that the machine shop is the foundation of most mechanical ideas is not an exaggeration. The machine tools used in our school are of the standard variety that will be found in modern shops and garages. The things that are being made are of a practical nature, and many of the products are taken home by the students.

If people could realize what an opportunity they have before them they would certainly take advantage of it. Some people are paying a good tuition fee into other schools for thing that could be had free of charge in our public schools.

We particularly invite the general public to visit our shops on Tuesday or Thursday evenings as we would be pleased to have you know what we are doing.

EDITORIALS By the PEOPLE

Glendale, May 3, 1922.

To the Glendale Press:

Every one who owns property in Glendale is interested in the advancement and future prosperity of this city, and among the many valuable suggestions made by the Prosperity Editor, the two that strike me as most important are: More manufacturing and cheap transportation to Los Angeles.

New factories should be encouraged in every reasonable way and will come as they see the advantages in doing so, but how about transportation? It is all right for busses to be allowed to compete with the Eagle Rock line and take the cream of the business, but the Pacific Electric seems to have some sacred rights that must not be interfered with; but for all that I believe there is a way to show that company that it is to their advantage to make a reasonable rate to the city. If a majority of the patrons let it be known that they will travel by auto or via Eagle Rock until the Pacific Electric makes a rate of 10 cents to Los Angeles, I think they will soon see it is to their advantage to do so and I believe this would be good business policy for both the road and the city of Glendale.

There are thousands of people that have business in Los Angeles who would prefer to live in Glendale if they could have quick and cheap transportation, and it is easy to see that there is more profit in carrying 100 passengers at 10 cents than in carrying 25 at 20 cents.

When I was in La Grange, Ill., during the war the Burlington was carrying thousands of people to Chicago on commutation tickets for less than a cent a mile and they did not go broke doing it. When the Canadian Pacific was charging 4 cents a mile and was about ready to go into the receiver's hands, the policy was changed and a rate of 1 cent a mile was advertised for emigrants anywhere in the northwest, and that stock today is the highest railroad stock on the market. Some object to going via Eagle Rock because they have to transfer and it takes 15 or 20 minutes longer to go that way.

All I have to say about that is if you do not care enough about this adjustment to make a little sacrifice, then take your medicine and go on paying the Pacific Electric its price.

Yours for fair play,

NEW BOOKS IN CITY LIBRARY

Soon to Be on Shelves Are Volumes of Literary Value

The Glendale public library on East Harvard street has a fine lot of books which will soon be on the shelves, that are likely to please readers who want something more substantial than fiction. Many of these are narratives of travel. They include several by N. O. Winter—"Florida, Land of Enchantment," "Poland, Today and Yesterday," and "Texas the Marvelous."

Other interesting volumes are "Bulgaria and Her People," by Will S. Monroe; "Oregon the Picturesque," by Murphy; "The Art of Japan," by Averill; "History of Babylonia and Assyria," by Rogers. An outstanding work handsomely presented is the "Autobiography of General Lew Wallace," in two volumes. As the author of "Ben Hur," "The Fair God" and other novels founded on historic events, the general has an enviably large circle of readers who should be interested in the story of his life.

"A Hundred Years in the Highlands," by Osgood Mackenzie, also sounds interesting.

"Westminster Abbey," by Pratt, is a welcome addition to the literature of that famous and historic pile.

"The New Era in Canada," by J. O. Miller, s current news which should find many readers.

"The Sieve," revelations of the man-mill, or the truth about immigration, is another challenging title of a book, the author of which is Weiss.

There is a full set of Elbert Hubbard's "Little Journeys to the Homes of Great Authors," etc., which should be a great help to students seeking the biographies of famous people by a past master in that kind of literature.

"Psychoanalysis and Behavior," by Andre Tridon, is a practical treatis on mental eccentricities which deserves attention and will be read by the thoughtful with interest.

"The Tent Dwellers," by Albert Bigelow Paine, is an out-of-doors book that will delight many readers.

Another treat in the line of biography is "A Study of Fyodor Dosloyevsky," the great Russian novelist, by his daughter Aimee Dosloyevsky.

NEW FACES IN "GRAND LARCENY"

The quest for new faces for the screen has been successful in the latest Goldwyn picture now showing at the Glendale theater. "Grand Larceny," by Albert Payson Terhune, is the photoplay chosen by Goldwyn for the debut of beautiful Claire Windsor as a leading lady. As the woman who holds down the right angle in this domestic triangle, she measures up to every expectation.

Another player, new in Goldwyn pictures, though a well known player, is Elliott Dexter. As was to be expected, his performance is excellent.

"Grand Larceny" is a dramatic story well directed and excellently produced. It is one of those pictures that cannot be reviewed in detail without giving away its plot. The larceny is not a theft of property, but of a woman's heart. Go to the Glendale theater and see how Claire Windsor proves that in the long run she cannot be stolen by any man because she belongs to herself. There is a real thrill in store for you.

VERDUGO SCOUTS TAKE LEAVE OF COMPANION

Arthur Wetton Is Presented With Token From Troop No. 2

When members of Troop No. 2, Boy Scouts of Glendale, learned that one of their number, Eagle Scout Arthur Wetton, was about to leave for Chicago, invitations were hurriedly sent out and a farewell party was given him by the troop at the Congregational church, Tuesday evening. About 25 were present including all members of the patrol of which Arthur has been the leader. He has been active in the troop for two years and will be much missed. As a memento of his service here and token of remembrance, a beautiful silver miniature eagle scout pin, the gift of the troop, was presented to Arthur by Scoutmaster Benjamin Robison.

It was an informal social evening, no program being provided, and at its close refreshments were served.

Arthur, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Wetton, is returning to Chicago, their former home, on account of the health of Mrs. Wetton, which is better there than here.

BRINKOP PLANS NOVEL CAMPAIGN

Commander of Suicide Squad of 364th Inf. to Use Radio's Aid

Spectacular methods of campaigning have been adopted with a large measure of success by at least one candidate, and others are commencing to emulate him in various sections of the country. Walter Brinkop, republican candidate for state treasurer, seems to be proving that the lessons of the recent war have a ready application to modern political campaigns—only the candidate and his adherents must recognize and seize the opportunities, he declares.

Radiophone, airplane, wireless telegraph and propaganda—all instruments of fighting the war—are being adopted by Brinkop's campaign committee, many of whose members served in the A. E. F. with him. Experts in the use of all are found in the Brinkop camp and they vow that the public interest in their candidate resulting from these spectacular methods will arouse old-time politicians to a realization of the possibilities of campaigning hand in hand with modern science.

"I believe I am very fortunate," declares Brinkop, "to have the enthusiastic support of so many men experienced in the technique of war. Several weeks ago ten thousand radiophone listeners were startled to hear a five-minute speech about my candidacy broadcasted by one of my signal corps friends up north. A number of my aviator friends are planning to surprise the voters of the state with certain stunts in the air. One of the most powerful wireless telegraph stations in this country will be 'saying things' for us every day for weeks before the primaries. Our propaganda campaign, in the hands of former government men, is another powerful instrument of campaigning whose efficiency has been little realized."

Brinkop, who commanded the "suicide squad" (machine gun company) of the 364th infantry, 91st division, in the Argonne and in Belgium, was cited and decorated, is now engaged in the peaceful business of mortgages and bonds in Los Angeles. His friends say he will be the next state treasurer.

FAIR AND SQUARE CLEANERS OPEN

The Fair and Square Cleaners and Dyers have opened an up-to-the-minute dyeing and cleaning establishment at 3409½ Glendale boulevard. The proprietors of this concern have been following this business for several years, and know it thoroughly.

"We have chosen the name 'Fair and Square Cleaners and Dyers' for our business, as it signifies the policy of this firm. We treat everyone fairly and squarely. We guarantee all work that is accepted and are equipped to efficiently clean and reblock ladies' and men's hats."

This firm says that the people of Glendale should prepare for "straw hat day" by bringing in their old "straws" and have them made like new.

THE SUPERMAN

I can smile when things are gloomy,
I can strive the harder, then;
I can cheer when I am downcast
And forsaken of all men.
I can sing when all is sadness,
When the world is drear and blue.
And, my friend, this is the secret,
Christ in me can all things do.

I can stand when all are fleeing,
When there's terror all about;
I am brave when all are fearful
And the world's turned inside out.
I am calm when all are flustered,
When they cry and shout and rant;
I can laugh when trouble downs me—
"Not I, but Christ—of course "I" can't.

I can chaff when dire misfortune
Sends me hurtling down to earth;
When I've lost my lone last dollar,
I can see it go with mirth.
I have read in song and story
These things that one should do,
But with "I" the task is hopeless—
Christ in me all things can do.

M. Eleanore Baker.

BIG FISH STORY IS CAUGHT IN MONTEREY

Boys Return With Remarkable Tales and Proof

A party of Glendale and Santa Ana boys returned to their homes Tuesday evening after a fishing trip of several days in Monterey county, and they bring back with them one of the big fish stories of the season. The party consisted of Norris Allen of this city and Harold Watson, Trafford Watson and Joe Beckler of Santa Ana. The boys say that every time they went out they got the limit, and they brought home with them some beautiful specimens.

They fished the Sankapo river, which lies a few miles north of the Hurst ranch and close to the town of San Simeon. The party left Saturday night, the trip being made in a Studebaker coupe. No trouble of any kind was experienced. The roads were good all the way with the exception of a 10-mile defour just south of Santa Maria.
